Wotif home-based agents

THE Wotif Group is set to shortly launch its own branded network of home-based travel brokers, who will operate under a new travelmax brand.

Wotif runs online accom provider wotif.com.au as well as lastminute.com.au and travel.com.au, and the group's Executive General Manager - Offline Sales, Ryan Rae, told TD that Travelmax is being launched by travel.com.au "in response to a growing need for an independent brand that could support the online growth of its offline travel agency business".

Travelmax members will fulfil the offline sales function of travel.com.au, servicing complex bookings such as tours and package holidays by following up leads generated from the site.

But they will also have their own clients, as well as sourcing business through a special "destination inspiration" website under the Travelmax brand.

Rae said Travelmax was looking for experienced travel consultants to join the group, which offers the unique selling proposition of a strong enquiry base via the travel.com.au site.

"We're looking to service and enhance the existing volume," he said with the broker network also adding scale for suppliers.

Travelmax brokers will be independent businesses contracted to travel.com.au, and there is no charge to join.

The company wouldn't divulge a target for Travelmax member numbers, but is aiming to sign up consultants from right across the country, Rae said.

Travel.com.au general manager - brand, Lisa Ferrari, said Travelmax would also provide ongoing sales and marketing training, along with a marketing kit for members.

"It's a new and very compelling business model suited to those travel agents who are keen to operate more independently."

The Travelmax website will launch next month.

Cruise numbers soar 11%

THE global financial crisis was barely a speed bump for the cruise industry, which today reported that more than 366,000 Australians took a cruise holiday last year, an increase of 11%.

The 2009 Australian Cruise Industry Report released by the Cruise Council showed the fifth consecutive year of double digit growth - with 341,000 taking ocean cruises and 25,500 taking a river cruise during the year.

"As the economic downturn hit last year, it seems Australians really hunted for value from their holidays and we're delighted to report a record number chose to cruise," said ICCA Chairman, Karen Christensen.

The most popular destination was the South Pacific, with 38% of the market, while Australia was the second top destination at 18% followed by cruises to New Zealand at 10% and then Asia which had an 8.5% share.

The big increase in local capacity and the economic downturn saw more passengers cruise locally, with small declines in longer-haul fly-cruise destinations such as Alaska and Europe, Christensen said.

TNQ Rydges rates

Window Seat

TRAVEL Daily loves to look after the ladies.

Kiriana Milne from Flight Centre told TD at a function this week that despite having been on a number of famils which had pictures published in our issues, she always seemed to be the person taking the picture or out of shot, so hadn't ever appeared.

We remedied that in yesterday's TD, with Kiriana appearing in a story about Beachcomber and we were thrilled to receive an email from her saying: "You made my dream come true - woo hoo!!!"

AVIATION security at Dubbo Airport in NSW's Central West is under review after a secure entrance was found to have a secret entry PIN taped to the inside of a gate.

The gate gave access to the general aviation area at the airport, with a note advising that the code is 2046# and telling users to 'please touch pad softly'.

US singer Kelly Rowland suffered a severe case of air rage yesterday during a Qantas flight from Melbourne to Sydney.

The Daily Telegraph quoted Rowland saying she and her entourage "found the flight attendants really st."

"They were just rude to us on the plane. They treated us like five-year-old kids," she said.

The tirade apparently followed a confrontation involving some passengers sitting in the wrong seats and others using mobile phones during flights.

Qantas said it was "important that crew instructions are followed by all passengers".

We will provide the brands, and leads for you to grow your own business from the comforts of your own home, beach, tropical island ... you decide!

QATAR
AIRWAYS القطرية

Volcano closes British airspace

MASSIVE disruption in UK and European aviation continues today after the eruption of a volcano in Iceland left a cloud of ash spreading across northern Europe.

The UK air traffic control service NATS has stopped all flights until at least 4pm AEST today, and Qantas has cancelled QF1, 5, 9, 29 and 31 today to both London and Frankfurt (TD breaking news).

Passengers are stranded in Bangkok and Singapore unable to continue onwards journeys, and QF has issued a fare waiver.

QF10 and QF2 from London also didn't operate today but are rescheduled to operate 24 hours after the original departure times.

Other carriers have also issued fare waivers, with Emirates not accepting any passengers across its network whose final destination is in UK, France (except Nice), Germany (except Munich) or Russia.

There are no hotel rooms available in Dubai for further disrupted passengers, with EK advising pax departing SYD/MEL/BNE/PER today or tomorrow to any affected destinations not to come to the airport.

Passengers are being advised to check on airline websites for current information, EK saying its site is updated every five minutes.

Qantas will operate a special flight QF8031 from Sydney at 4.15pm today, operating via MEL to arrive in SIN at 12.35am.

Customers wanting to travel to Bangkok or Hong Kong today will be advised in due course, QF said.

APJC members

A NUMBER of Travel Daily readers have asked for a full list of the members of IATA's Agency Programme Joint Council (APJC) in Australia, which is the body which provides agents and airlines the opportunity to discuss the IATA Passenger Sales Agency agreement (TD yesterday).

The committee's independent chairman is former AFTA ceo Mike Hatton, and the airline delegates and their alternates are Jeannie Foster/Rick Pomery (Air Canada), John Harrison/Leanne Geraghty (Air New Zealand), Stephen Pearce/Richard Nunes (Emirates), Dale Woodhouse/Myrla Igonia (Singapore Airlines), Paul Alacqua/Dale Vaughan (Qantas) and Derek Morris/Stephen Hinwood (Cathay Pacific).

US merger mania

A New York Times report overnight says that United Airlines and Continental are in talks about a merger - just a week after UA and US Airways were also said to be in "serious" discussions about a merger.

The accession of Continental into Star Alliance last year makes such a deal easier, but a number of anonymous sources are quoted saying that talks are still in the early stages.

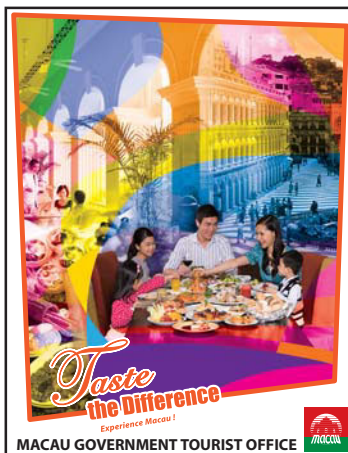

Shares in CO and UA rose on Wall Street after the news.

Brunei adds 777

ROYAL Brunei Airlines will expand its fleet with a leased 777-200ER aircraft from Jun, with the plane to be used on some of its flights to Australia.

The plane was previously operated by Singapore Airlines and is configured with 30 business class and 255 economy seats.

According to GDS displays the 777 is expected to enter service for BI on 24 Jun, operating to Dubai and London Heathrow on that date and on the Brisbane route from 25 Jun.

Windstar spa suites

WINDSTAR Cruises will debut spa suites on its vessel Wind Surf from 30 May, with the first voyage to sail the Mediterranean roundtrip from Rome.

Bye bye bmi

BRITISH carrier bmi is set to have its name changed back to British Midland International, as part of moves by owner Lufthansa which will also see 800 jobs cut and capacity slashed by 25%.

The bmi name was introduced in 2001, but Lufthansa ceo Wolfgang Prock-Schauer said bringing back the British Midland moniker would appeal to international passengers.

"In the UK the name bmi was fine, but in a foreign market like the Middle East nobody knew what it meant," he said.

"'British' stands for quality and I think people will want to fly on a British airline."

The change will be reflected in marketing material, and in the UK the carrier will continue to be branded as bmi, with no change to aircraft livery.

ACCC powers up

NEW legislation granting more powers to the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission has come into effect, giving the ACCC the ability to "deal more effectively with matters that affect many consumers".

The new law allows the ACCC to seek or issue civil penalties of up to $1.1 million for unconscionable conduct, pyramid selling and false or misleading conduct.

Serious or repeat offenders will be able to be dealt with by court orders banning them from managing corporations, and the ACCC will also be able to use "substantiation notices" to require traders to justify claims about products they promote.

The ACCC will also be able to ask a court to order refunds be paid to consumers affected by misleading conduct.

Sofitel is so glamorous

ABOVE: The Sofitel Sydney Wentworth was the place to be in Sydney yesterday as dozens of Miss Universe Australia hopefuls arrived in force for the official Registration Day for the event.

The Sydney Sofitel property has been named as the Official Miss Universe Australia Host Venue for 2010 - a pageant which provides a platform for Australia's most beautiful, talented, educated and confident young women to compete for the Aussie crown.

The winner of the comp will also have the chance to represent Australia at Donald Trump's International Miss Universe finals.

A clearly chuffed Sofitel Sydney Wentworth general manager Marc Cherrier said: "Today it is easy to see why I love my job so much."

QUEENSLAND is set to replace its long-standing 'Where Else But Queensland' marketing campaign after 13 years, with a fresh brand and strategy to be unveiled in Sep.

TQ ceo Anthony Hayes confirmed the move, saying it's a "big deal and a huge challenge."

"We had Where Else But Queensland for 13 years and Beautiful One Day, Perfect the Next for 10 years," he said.

Hayes also said TQ was working on its next 'big idea' campaign to follow up the wildly successful Best Job In The World promotion, according to the Gold Coast Bulletin.

Aus air fuel card

A US bank has begun issuing a special credit card to operators of private aircraft in Australia.

Australia is the 33rd country to offer the Multi Service Aviation Card, which allows pilots and plane owners to pay for fuel, maintenance and other services.

The card is accepted by 7500 aviation service providers in more than 190 countries, and here it will be issued through Elavon Financial Services which is part of parent company US Bancorp.

Australian sales efforts for the card will be managed from South Africa by Martin Hankins, who represents Multi Service Aviation in the region.

oUU la la Air Austral!

LAST night Air Austral celebrated its first anniversary of operation into Sydney at a lavish cocktail function at l'AQUA, Cockle Bay Wharf.

Over 250 guests joined the Air Austral management team, cabin crew, suppliers and partners from France, Réunion, New Caledonia and Australia to help mark the special occasion.

Since first landing at Sydney's Kingsford Smith Airport on 14 Apr last year, "things have really, really moved along well for the airline", said World Aviation Systems md, Col Hughes.

Dubbed 'the French airline of the Indian Ocean', today Air Austral offers twice weekly services from Sydney operating to Nouméa, as well as Mauritius, Madagascar, Johannesburg and Paris travelling via Réunion.

"We're offering Australian travellers an alternative route to Europe...for example Paris", said Air Austral's commercial director, Jean-Marc Grazzini.

From Feb 2011, Air Austral will operate its 777-300 aircraft from the Sydney route, offering passengers travelling on the longer-haul flights with a more comfortable service.

"We've received an overwhelming response since inauguration and have reinforced our commercial team in Sydney to penetrate the market", said Grazzini.

Coincidentally, Air Austral's one year celebration last night was taking place whilst a special segment on Réunion was being showcased on Channel 9's Getaway program.

InterContinental tops hotel survey

PATRONS of InterContinental Hotels have a higher satisfaction rating than people who stay at other hotel and resort brands, according to a survey released yesterday by Roy Morgan Research.

The report covered 27 hotel brands and provides information on both patronage levels as well as overall satisfaction with the last stay at a hotel.

The top five hotel groups in terms of satisfaction over the 12 months from Mar 2009 to Feb 2010 were InterContinental at 91.1%, Mantra in second place at 87.8%, Crowne Plaza and Marriott tied at 86.6% and Sofitel which had an overall 85.4% satisfaction rating.

Roy Morgan International director of Tourism, Travel & Leisure, Jane Ianniello, said the study "shows that premium hotel and resort brands have lower patronage levels but receive the highest satisfaction ratings."

"Patronage of premium hotels and resorts is higher amongst business travellers than holiday and leisure travellers," she added.

QF Thai deferral

QANTAS has issued a fare waiver for Thailand due to the continuing civil unrest there.

Passengers holding a valid QF ticket for travel on or before 18 Apr can without penalty defer travel, return to the origin port or bypass Thailand as a stopover.

All changes to travel dates must be made before midnight tomorrow 17 Apr and new travel dates must be prior to 30 May.

Samsonite solar

TRAVEL luggage maker Samsonite will this year introduce a new range of laptop bags (below) that integrate light weight Ascent Solar panels, designed to give travellers their own portable power supply for electrical devices when they are on the move.

At the other end of the spectrum, hotels that lagged behind on customers who rated them as 'very' or 'fairly' satisfied included Ibis at 72.5%, Budget at 72.2%, Comfort at 69.2%, Chifley at 69.1% and "clearly last," Formule 1 at just 48.1%.

Teaming up for the sevens

ABOVE: This group is reportedly still recovering after a "very large weekend" visit to Hong Kong for the Hong Kong Sevens.

They stayed in the official players hotel for the event, the Marco Polo Hong Kong, with Craig Davies from Hotel Representation Australia saying "There is nothing better than being in the hotel with the players."

"A quick chat and a pep talk in the lift with the Australian team unfortunately did not result in the desired outcome," he lamented.
