Another TG page!

THAI Airways International has again turned the front page of Travel Daily purple as part of the carrier's ongoing celebrations of its 50th anniversary this month.

Today there's also another full page of TG photos - this time from the 'Touch of Gold' industry cocktail party at the Sydney Opera House last week (TD 08 May) which welcomed more than 330 industry colleagues.

More on page eleven.

JTG set for merger

JETSET Travelworld this morning suspended its shares from trading pending an announcement about a "material merger" (TD breaking news).

The company said the proposed transaction is still under negotiation, and expects to make an announcement regarding the deal before the stock market opens on Thu morning.

Long-standing speculation across the industry expects that the announcement will confirm a merger with Stella Travel Group - keep watching TD for details.

QF China Eastern c'share

QANTAS today confirmed plans to further extend its codeshare pact with China Eastern Airlines, to cover flights between Australia and Singapore and then onwards from SIN to ports in China.

QF said that if approved the new arrangements would take effect from 01 Jun and would operate on a free sale basis.

Under the proposal China Eastern will code share on QF flights between Australia and Singapore, while Qantas will place its code on selected China Eastern Airlines services between Singapore and China which connect with its flights from Australia.

Last month Qantas added seven new codeshare destinations in China with China Eastern (TD 08 Apr), while China Eastern is also codesharing on a number of QF domestic and Tasman routes.

The International Air Services Commission is seeking submissions about the application to vary QF's allocation on the Singapore route, with a deadline of 25 May.

DJ corp focus

INCOMING Virgin Blue ceo John Borghetti has flagged intentions to compete "more aggressively" in the corporate market, with an aim of significantly increasing Virgin Blue's share of travel from the top 100 companies in Australia.

Today's Financial Review also reports that Borghetti, who took on the job last Saturday, is looking at revamping the carrier's cabin crew uniforms.

Thai waiver longer

QANTAS has extended its fare waiver for bookings to and from Thailand due to the continued civil unrest and political tensions in Bangkok.

Passengers holding a booking for travel on or before 15 May can make changes without penalties.

Footy tip winners

CONGRATULATIONS to Julie Marshall from Travel Masters who was the top scorer in last weekend's Travel Daily AFL footy tipping competition.

Julie has won two bottles of wine courtesy of Compass Car Rental, while the top NRL tipper last weekend was Maria Summers of Travel Concepts - who's heading off to Oceanworld Manly for a Shark Dive Xtreme Experience.

See the full tipper ladder and all the major prize details at www.traveldaily.com.au.

QF fares go up

QANTAS has increased select Red e-Deal and Super Saver fares by $2 to $12 on return services between ADL-PER, BNE-CBR, BNE-PER, CBR-MEL, CBR-SYD, KTA-PER, PER-PHE and PER-ZNE yesterday.

QF is also boosting Flexi Saver and Fully Flexible fares on BNE-PER, KTA-PER and PER-ZNE routes by $7 to $18, with all bookings needing to be ticketed by today to avoid the increase.

Wholesale and group fares on the services will also increase, effective 26 May.

EK inflight calls

EMIRATES is offering the ability for some passengers to use their mobile phones on trans-Tasman services under a new deal with Telecom New Zealand.

Malaysia Airlines has also signed a pact with the communications provider, with customers also able to access voice, text and data services on selected flights.

Aircraft are equipped with special mobile phone transmitters which work via satellite during flight above 6000m, and the service is provided in conjunction with AeroMobile.

Currently passengers need to have an account with Telecom NZ to use the service, which costs NZ$13 a minute for outgoing calls, NZ$1 a minute for incoming and NZ0.80 per text message.

In-flight data costs a whopping NZ$40 a megabyte.

More BA strikes

BRITISH Airways is set for another round of cabin crew industrial action, with unions advising the carrier (with just a week's notice) that its London Heathrow based crew intend to strike for 20 days over the next month after talks broke down.

The Unite trade union says the walkout will see staff off the job 18-22 May, 24-28 May, 30 May-03 Jun and 05-09 Jun, and BA said it's currently considering its response to minimise disruption.

At this stage BA expects all flights to and from Gatwick and London City airports to operate as normal, but services will be affected at London Heathrow.

"At Heathrow we plan to operate a substantial part of our longhaul schedule and there will be a number of flights to every destination," the carrier said.

The action is expected to severely impact travel during upcoming UK school holidays and could also affect soccer fans travelling to South Africa for the World Cup next month.

It's not clear at this stage how BA's Australian flights will be affected by the strike action.

$1.5m Ecotours collapse

THE failure of Australian Ecotours (TD 09 Apr) - formerly operating as Discovery Ecotours and Odyssey Ecotours - has seen a shortfall of about $1.5m, with industry creditors owed around half a million dollars.

Debts are outstanding to a number of NT accommodation operators as well as a range of wholesalers including Qantas Holidays, Territory Discoveries, and Tour East.

Tourism NT is a significant creditor, owed more than $85,000 according to a report from the administrator, RSM Bird Cameron.

And the Australian Taxation Office is also pursuing the company over more than $700,000 in unpaid taxes, while staff are owed unpaid superannuation worth around $90,000.

Before its collapse the company traded from leased premises at the Yulara resort between Uluru and Kata Tjuta, operating small group tours to a range of outback destinations.

The administrator cited an "endemic shortage of working capital", failure to secure the company's lease from Voyages at Yulara and poor financial management for the collapse, along with increased debt due to expansion of the business and the impact of the global financial crisis on tourism.

Administrator Frank Lo Pilato said other assets of the company include registered business names, domain names, forward bookings and a client database, which have been advertised for sale in the Financial Review and are the subject of continuing negotiations.

He's recommending that Australian Ecotours P/L be wound up and a liquidator appointed.

Qantas US 2-for-1

QANTAS has launched a sale in the US in which it's offering two-for-one Premium Economy and Business Class fares.

Los Angeles to Auckland in business class is being offered for tickets purchased this week for travel 10 May-30 Jun, while San Francisco to Sydney is also two-for-one in Premium Economy under the same limited dates.

QF is also offering discounts on its Aussie Airpass and Walkabout Pass products for US travellers, with Australian domestic sectors from US$39 per flight.

Window Seat

A TRAIN driver on Taiwan's high speed rail system has lost his job after falling asleep while his train was travelling at about 300 kilometres an hour.

Controllers noticed that he didn't appear to be touching the controls and alerted staff in the carriages about the problem.

"The driver had taken sleeping pills and was not fully conscious while on duty," said a spokesman for the Taiwan High Speed Rail, reassuring pax that automatic systems meant the control room was able to take over the train for about 13 min and bring it safely into Taichung station.

Eurostar revamp

CROSS channel rail operator Eurostar has announced the introduction of a new 'mid class' service called Standard Premier - "designed to appeal to not only the more cost conscious business traveller, but also leisure travellers who want that little bit of extra space and service".

The operator said the change followed extensive market research and customer feedback, with Standard Premier replacing the existing Leisure Select class, and complementing the existing Standard and Business Premier classes.

Travellers in Standard Premier will have more space on board, a light meal and selection of magazines along with the option of flexible fares.

Business Premier will continue to offer 10 minute express check-in, business lounge access and menus designed by Michelin star chef Graham Garrett.

Tickets for the new Standard Premier class are now on sale for travel from 01 Sep this year via gsa's Rail Plus, Rail Tickets, CIT Holidays and Infinity Holidays.

The conference will hear from a range of industry experts as well as Travelscene ceo Mike Thompson and Stella Travel Services chief Peter Lacaze.

Dreamworld dives

REVENUE at Dreamworld on the Gold Coast fell 5.1% for the nine months to 31 Mar, according to the theme park's owner, the Ardent Leisure Trust.

Total revenue fell from $8.4m to $8.1m over the period, which included both Easter and the summer school holidays.

Ardent chairman Neil Balnaves said the park had been impacted by "the increasingly competitive market and reduced spending by visitors to the Gold Coast".

Mother's Day Vibe

CONGRATULATIONS to Jackie Colonnelli of Jetset MLC; Vicky Gilden of Jetset Tours and Sarah Allen of Corporate Travel Management who were winners in last week's Vibe Hotel's Mothers Day competition, which featured exclusively in TD.

Their winning entries were:

Jackie - My best mother's day memory is having a sore neck after wearing two "beautiful" and "unique" necklaces made for me by my wonderful boys. Their delight in seeing me wear them was worth the discomfort and the "interested" looks from people questioning my fashion sense!

Vicky - A number of years ago while out with the family for Mothers' Day, a waiter was giving roses to all the mums. When he offered one to me, I gladly accepted... I'd just found out I was pregnant for the first time and was thrilled to accept that rose.

And Sarah - Cooking a cake for Mum on mother's day, but being too young to know how to turn an oven on my brother suggested we use the grill instead! We made mum eat some - she claims she loved it, but to ask for help next time!

These lucky ladies have each won a 'Glamorous Night' package thanks to Vibe Hotels and Napoleon Perdis.

BA execs acquitted

FOUR British Airways senior executives have been exonerated on price-fixing charges after the UK Office of Fair Trading prosecution collapsed in court.

The case has been running for some years, after allegations that BA had colluded with rival Virgin Atlantic over the imposition of fuel surcharges on trans-Atlantic flights - based on evidence from VS which claimed immunity from prosecution as the whistleblower.

Lawyers for the regulator admitted that the OFT had missed emails to or from a VS employee related to fuel surcharges which indicated that the carriers had independently raised the levies.

"There can only be one verdict, not guilty," prosecutor Richard Latham sensationally told the jury after indicating that the OFT would not be offering any evidence in the case.

BA head of sales Andrew Crawley was cleared along with former BA director Martin George, former head of BA UK and Ireland sales Alan Burnett and Iain Burns, who headed up BA's PR division.

BA has already paid hundreds of millions of pounds in fines relating to the allegations.

Canberra comes to Sydney

ABOVE: Last week Australian Capital Tourism hosted a Canberra Product Workshop in Sydney, showcasing a range of attractions and accommodation in the national capital.

One of the exhibitors was the Australian Institute of Sport which offers a popular behind-the-scenes tour, and pictured above are Mel Swaine and Sonia Downie of the AIS with Liz Bomben of ACT Tourism.

ALSO taking part in the workshop was Craig Starr from (guess where?) Gold Creek Station (above).

Tour groups visiting the station can enjoy a truly Australian experience including sheep herding from the resident kelpies, learning about the Merino and its contribution to the wool industry along with a traditional Australian barbecue meal.

Gold Creek Station is one of the oldest farms in the ACT and has welcomed tourists since 1977.

AND also among the exhibitors was local chef Richard Everson from Country Guesthouse Schonegg - about 30 minutes from Canberra in the Murrumbateman wine district. He's pictured above giving a taste of some delicacies to Rosetta Panebianco of Crowne Plaza Canberra.
