Sydney back on QR radar

QATAR Airways will accede to Sydney Airport's strict night-time curfew and add the NSW capital to its global network, ceo Akbar Al Baker has revealed to TD.

The outspoken airline chief exec made the comment yesterday in Doha at the inauguration of Qatar Airways as the oneworld alliance's 13th member carrier.

QR had initially announced with great fanfare that flights to Sydney would launch shortly after its Dec 2009 debut to Melbourne, but quietly shelved the plan a few months later (TD 11 Mar 10).

More recently, Al Baker had reiterated that QR would never fly into Sydney due to the curfew, saying "we're not in the business of parking planes on the ground for ten hours" (TD 02 May 12).

However, when asked by TD yesterday if joining oneworld had warranted a change in opinion, he confirmed that Sydney was indeed now back on the radar.

Unwilling to name a date, Al Baker stated: "We will sometime or later fly to Sydney when we have a restructured bank [of flights], so that we don't fly into Sydney late, in order for us to go in and out within the curfew time."

QR currently operates a fleet of 130 jets but has orders for over 250 new aircraft to be delivered in future years, comprised of 13 Airbus A380s, 80 A350s and 80 A320neos along with 52 more Boeing 787 Dreamliners.

They will be supplemented by yet another order at the Dubai Air Show next month, he confirmed, likely to be for the Boeing 777X - meaning there will be plenty of aircraft options for a SYD route.

oneworld founding member Qantas has embraced QR's entry into the group, with a spokesman telling TD: "We look forward to working with them, including through lounge access & frequent flyer arrangements, as we do with all our fellow members."

More on QR's induction into oneworld on page four.

The entertainment and sports travel firm has signed agreements with partners to offer ticket and hotel deals incorporating the NBA basketball, NFL gridiron football, MLB baseball and motorsports.

Keith Prowse Travel managing director Daniel Morahan said the company's available scope for sports in the US was larger still.

JTG agent wins Avis prize

WESTERN Australia will become the home of the Avis Travel Agent Scholarship trophy for the next 12 months after Ann Hobbs from Travelworld Kununurra last night took out the prestigious accolade.

Hobbs was named as the 2013 Scholarship winner in a ceremony at Sydney's Four Seasons Hotel.

It marks the first time in the 17 year history of the scholarship that an agent from Western Australia has claimed the award.

WA's first winner was selected from a field of four closely-matched agents vying for the gong, two of whom hailed from Queensland with one representing New South Wales.

Speaking to Travel Daily after receiving her award, Hobbs said the win was overwhelming.

"Ever since applying for the award it has made me a better consultant, even before I was named as a finalist," Hobbs said.

Finalists this year represented a broad cross-section of the industry, with retail, corporate & home-based travel consultants all among the contenders.

Among the finalists was Leanne

Ralston of Sydney's Spencer Travel, Kristi-Anne Butel from Complete Travel Solutions in Brendale, Qld and Maria Pandalai of TravelManagers, in Townsville.

A trademark of the long-running Avis Travel Scholarship is that rather than focusing on sales, it recognises superior customer service by agents who go above and beyond the call of duty to exceed the needs of their clients.

Avis travel industry manager Russell Butler praised the outstanding service standards set by the finalists, saying the four exuded among the highest professional qualities he had seen in his years in the travel industry.

In taking out the scholarship, Hobbs will now prepare for a career-defining year lined with prizes, challenges, appointments and meetings aiming to further develop her professional career and her own personal aspirations.

Butler thanked Qantas, TIME, Southern Cross University, CLIA, Polonious Resources, saying the annual scholarship would not be possible without their support.

Today's issue of TD is coming to you from Doha, Qatar where Qatar Airways has now joined the oneworld airline alliance.

DESPITE some fine tuning still required, officials at Hamad International Airport - the soon to be new home of Qatar Airways - insist the $US15 billion facility can be switched on and ready to go with just 24 hours notice.

HIA was used as the launch hub for Qatar Airways entry into the oneworld alliance yesterday, and what an awe-inspiring venue - packed with 5 concourses, built to handle 24 million pax per year initially, it's been regarded by some already as the best airport in the world.

See tomorrow's TD for behind the scenes coverage from HIA.

Shuttlewood to run CAN

KAYLENE Shuttlewood has been named as helloworld's new Head of Affiliate Network, which includes the Concorde Agency Network (TD breaking news).

Shuttlewood will move from her current role as JTG's General Manager Airline Representation, where she will be replaced by James Vaile in the coming weeks, overseeing World Aviation Systems and Global Aviation Services.

She said her initial priority will be "to focus on all of our Affiliate agents and emphasise the value proposition of the helloworld network, its operational structure and to demonstrate its many benefits over current offerings.

"Our CAN agents can be assured that the team of people that have supported them will continue to provide the same high level of service they've received in the past," she said.

Shuttlewood said the Affiliate Model is an important part of JTG's retail transformation, with helloworld alignment bringing with it access to Air Tickets technology and preferred deals.

GA alters SYD/MEL

GARUDA Indonesia will reduce its non-stop services from Sydney to Jakarta from five weekly A330 flights to four 777-300ER services effective from 01 Jun 2014, lifting again to six weekly from 04 Oct.

The rejig will also see the flights retimed to a morning departure from Jakarta and evening flights departing Sydney at 1910.

GA's five weekly Melbourne-Jakarta A330 services will also shift to an evening departure from the same date.

The carrier has also opened bookings for its new Jakarta-London Gatwick flights (TD 17 Jul) which will now operate thrice weekly effective from 29 May.

Window Seat

COULD there be a new option for flights landing in Los Angeles?

British tabloids are reporting that movie star Jennifer Aniston has lodged an application for a private jet runway at her new mansion in the upmarket suburb of Bel Air.

According to UK magazine Heat, the $1 million runway will "cut hours off the flight times" as she and her fiancé Justin Theroux commute to New York.

There's some scepticism about whether the FAA will allow flights to land in the suburban neighbourhood - despite the size of Aniston's property which sits on three acres and has its own on-site vineyard.

The purported runway cost is chicken feed versus the $21m she paid for the house last year.

Oryx strengthens oneworld

IN THE words of chief executive Bruce Ashby, oneworld has had its leading position further strengthened through the addition of Qatar Airways.

Speaking in Doha yesterday, Ashby said QR brings a "very attractive network to oneworld," introducing 21 new destinations in five countries - Ethiopia, Iran, Serbia, Rwanda and Tanzania.

The scope of oneworld now extends to 981 destinations in 151 countries, covering 14,244 daily departures and some 475 million passengers annually.

QR will boost oneworld's pax carrying share by 3.3% overall, but in the crucial Middle East, African and Indian subcontinent regions, the number will spike by 55%, Ashby said.

Qatar Airways ceo Akbar Al Baker said the key benefit for his carrier joining oneworld was the widening of its point-to-point offering, global lounge access & enhanced customer experience.

QF/EK pact still bigger

QATAR Airways' entry into the oneworld alliance has no impact on the Qantas partnership with fellow Gulf airline Emirates, the Australian flag-carrier has said.

A Qantas spokesman told Travel Daily there was no conflict of interest in having a tie-up with Qatar Airways through oneworld and a joint venture with Emirates.

"There is no conflict with the Qantas-Emirates partnership and oneworld has said repeatedly that it welcomes its members forming strategic alliances outside of the grouping.

"For our part we have made it clear that Emirates is our biggest and most significant partner - but that oneworld is still very important to us," the spokesman told TD in Doha overnight.

Through oneworld, members of QR's Privilege Club will be able to accrue points on Qantas flights and vice versa, plus gain reciprocal access to QF lounges, but it excludes codesharing.

New Mid East pass

THE integration of Qatar Airways into oneworld has seen the development of an all new Visit Middle East fare into the alliance's stable of products.

Available for sale from Fri, the new pass is offered in conjunction with the services of fellow oneworld carrier Royal Jordanian to 30 destinations in 12 countries within the Gulf, Levant and Egypt.

The Visit Middle East pass is based on a minimum of three to a maximum of 10 sectors priced from US$75 per sector, sold in conjunction with an international flight to the region flown on a oneworld member carrier.

More at www.oneworld.com.

HIA early '14 opening

THE new home of Qatar Airways - Hamad International Airport - was last week given a revised opening date of early 2014 by Qatar's Minister of Transport, His Excellency Jassim Seif Al Sulaiti.
