ATAS website goes live

THE Australian Federation of Travel Agents has unveiled its new consumer-facing website to promote the AFTA Travel Accreditation Scheme (ATAS).

The portal provides a detailed description of what ATAS is and how it benefit travellers, along with a 'Top 10' list of reasons why consumers should book with an ATAS travel agent.

AFTA's video promoting the accreditation program, screened at the National Travel Industry Awards for the first time in Jul, can also be viewed on the site.

Consumers are also able to 'Report an Agent' if their travel experience "didn't turn out as planned" via a complaint form.

"When expectations are not met, we're committed to addressing the situations between you and the accredited ATAS travel agents you book," the ATAS site says.

The site provides direct links to Smartraveller for registering travel plans, a pre-departure checklist for information on what to pack and a checklist of "items to confirm before you depart", including travel insurance, passport checks & vaccinations. More at www.atas.com.au.

AirAsia adding fleetwide wi-fi

MALAYSIAN low-cost carrier AirAsia has confirmed the rollout of wi-fi products including inflight access to instant messaging, emails and content streaming for all passengers by the end of 2014.

"Ancillary income contributes around 20 per cent of our revenue and we are determined to boost this further with new products and services," said ceo and founder Tony Fernandes.

He said the new wi-fi product had been five years in the making, after early concepts offered to the airline proved to be too expensive.

"We have decided to develop our own," Fernandes said, adding "in true AirAsia style, we have to get it right and provide our guests with the best value at the most affordable rates.

"It will be the first on-board wi-fi product in the world with an affordable pricing system."

The new system is currently being trialled, with 60 passengers per flight being offered the opportunity to give it a go.

The wi-fi move follows the announcement earlier this week of AirAsia's new Premium Flex product (TD Wed), with the carrier setting its sights firmly on expanding its share of the corporate travel market.

QF supplements NZ

QANTAS has released details of 11 return supplementary services between Australia and New Zealand, to cater for strong demand over the peak summer holiday period.

Operating using B737 aircraft from 17-27 Dec 2014, the extra flights include five supplementary return SYD-AKL flights, two return MEL-AKL services, one extra BNE-AKL return flight and three supplementary SYD-CHC return services.

Two Queen Victoria cruise cancellations

CUNARD'S Queen Victoria will undergo a major makeover in Jan, with a previously planned refit brought forward from Dec 2015 to allow for urgent repairs to one of the vessel's propulsion units.

Two Jan sailings have been cancelled as a result, but the work will be complete prior to Victoria's Round World Cruise which commences 20 Jan 2015.

The project includes the creation of nine single staterooms, new carpet and the introduction of many new features installed on the recently overhauled Queen Elizabeth.

Flat screen TVs will be installed in all staterooms, while shopping options will be expanded with a jewellery and watch store.

The cancelled cruises included a 12-night Canary Island sailing from 03 to 15 Jan and a five-night Amsterdam & Cherbourg cruise from 15-20 Jan.

Window Seat

BUDGET travellers are being encouraged to book accommodation via a new "anti-luxury" website intriguingly titled hovelstay.com.

The company's mission is to list "inexpensive and interesting places to stay for travelling college students," with all listings priced under US$99.

"Hovels are conveniently located, catering to the college student's lifestyle and budget," the website enthuses.

Hovel Hosts are being invited to "monetise free space" and list their properties for a 1% introductory commission rate.

The concept is likely to grow, with Hovelstay having just secured over $1m in venture capital funding from private investors in London and Dubai.

Bayview's flashy new digs

MELBOURNE agency Bayview Travel has relocated to new premises on Bay Street, Brighton.

Directors Chris McGetrick and Michael Nolan took delivery of the keys to "Bayview House" last week, and the team celebrated the move with a surprise visit and welcome Champagne from some spunky "Cabana Boys" (courtesy of Leading Hotels of the World) who were doing their best to bring some California sun to the somewhat chilly winter scene.

New Horizons bonus

NEW Horizons Holidays is offering travel agents a $20 Coles Myer gift card for every booking over $950, valid through 30 Sep.

Bench African battlefield trip

AFRICAN safari specialist Bench International is seeking relatives of a distinguished Australian war hero to take part in a centenary commemoration of the East African campaign of the First World War next year.

Lieutenant William Thomas Dartnell was awarded a posthumous Victoria Cross for gallantry and heroism in the campaign, with the safari departing Nairobi and travel to Tsavo National Park where he died on 03 Sep 2015 after trying to save the lives of 14 wounded comrades.

Dartnell's grave is maintained within the park, and the group will spend a week in the Tsavo area and visit many significant battle sites.

The war hero was born in the inner Melbourne suburb of Collingwood and later lived in neighbouring Fitzroy.

Bench gm Martin Edwards said he hopes to be able to take two of Dartnell's relatives on the trip which will also include a World War I historian.

Fiji "Water Blob"

JAY Whyte, the operator of Fiji's Sigatoka River Safari and Off Road Caves Safari, has just launched a new experience intriguingly titled the Water Blob.

The 10m vinyl inflatable tube is designed for kids over 10 and adults to jump on and fly off into the water, with a stringent safety policy in place and life jackets mandatory.

There will be two daily sessions - see www.waterblobfiji.com.

Variety Bash beasts bashed up

THE travel industry's "Wacky Racers" have endured some hiccups this week, with Mario's Mini left broken in Broken Hill as the group headed into Balranald in outback New South Wales.

Mario and Luigi - Steve McKenzie and Mark Tuohy - will be back on the road today to join the others, heading east to cross the finish line in Sydney this weekend after some minor repairs by the locals.

The Variety Bash teams are sponsored by Amadeus and the Lido Group, along with AirPlus and time target, with the Wacky Racer team comprising Daniel Gray, Gena Signorini and Richard Loder.

Sydney-based TD readers are invited to be at Moore Park at 11.30am this Sun 17 Aug for the grand parade of over 600 "Bash" vehicles as they cross the line and celebrate this year's event.

New WA coach fleet

THE West Australian Govt will upgrade its fleet of road coaches over the next three years that service popular tourist routes.

Twenty-three new vehicles will replace the existing decade-old fleet, with the first eight coaches introduced in the next 12 months.

WA regional development Minister Terry Redman said the coaches help senior passengers and tourists who were frequent bus users access regional areas.

The 5-star road coaches provide "a vital link for tourists exploring WA," Redman commented today.

Whyalla upgrade

THE Federal Government has announced the completion of an upgrade of Whyalla Airport Terminal in South Australia.

Works included doubling the size of the terminal and included an extension of the passenger lounge and development of a new business traveller zone.

Air travel top gripes

TRIPADVISOR has revealed the top five air travel complaints by Aussies in its second annual survey of 4,800 respondents.

At the top was uncomfortable seats or limited legroom with 70% of votes, followed by loud or crying children (42%), costly airline fees and ticket prices (37%), long security lines (35%) and unpredictable flight delays or cancellations (30%).

Despite the gripes, passengers still remain unwilling to pay extra dollars to escape the issues, TripAdvisor commented.

Forty-five percent of travellers are reluctant to pay for more legroom on a flight under four hours duration, while 43% refuse to pay to sit in a child-free zone.

Respondents prioritised more legroom as the preferred amenity they would choose to improve the in-flight experience, followed by a comfortable seat & free wi-fi.
