Value World rises from ashes?

THE people behind Indian VFR specialist agency Value World Travel (VWT), which collapsed late last year (TD 10 Nov), appear to have relaunched a new agency which surprisingly this week received ATAS accreditation.

Dubbed Yupp Travel, the agency has been formed by renaming a sister company to VWT called Value Infotech Pty Ltd, (trading as Value Jet), which has a number of common features with VWT including former directors and shareholders, TD can reveal.

The top result of a simple Google search on Yupp Travel is a Facebook page devoted to 'Victims of Value World Travel,' on which one of the members last week warned that VWT had popped up again as Yupp Travel.

ASIC documents indicate both Value World Travel & Yupp Travel have a common postal address, former street address and the same former directors - Pradeep Upadhyay & Neni Tiwari - while another firm called Unity Mega Holdings is a former shareholder of both companies too.

VWT was not ATAS accredited prior to its highly public collapse, but a search of the ATAS website confirms Yupp Travel is now an accredited member of the scheme.

Value Infotech Pty Ltd's name was changed to Yupp Travel Pty Ltd on 06 Jan - the day after Pradeep Upadhyay resigned as a director of the firm.

Neni Tiwari is not allowed to be a company director after ASIC banned him over the collapse of a former insurance business called Value Greenslips

The minutes of the most recent VWT creditor's meeting indicate the "former and current directors will be pursued by the liquidator in regard to their actions & the failure of the company".

AFTA advised TD that based on the new information it will investigate further but noted it could not make a decision based on "Facebook speculation".

ATAS regional TVC

AFTA has extended the ATAS TV campaign previously aired in Sydney to regional Australia, with the 15sec ad to air on WIN, NBN, GO & GEM from Sun to early-Mar. The TVC has the potential of reaching over 3.64m consumers in regional areas, AFTA said.

EK non-stop to Auckland

EMIRATES has emerged as the first Gulf carrier to formally confirm plans to launch non-stop services between Dubai and New Zealand, starting 01 Mar.

The direct route to Auckland will be operated using Long Range Boeing 777-200 aircraft, cutting almost three hours of the current journey time (in each direction) from its Australian transit hubs of Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane.

EK chairman and chief exec HH Sheikh Ahmed bin Saeed Al Maktoum said the service will be a boon to business and leisure travellers heading to Europe, parts of Africa and the Middle East, offering a new one-stop alternative to those regions.

He said flights direct to Auckland have "been in our sights for some time, dependent on availability of suitable aircraft as we rapidly expand our global network of destinations, and frequency of flights and capacity on existing routes."

"We are particularly delighted that we can now bring this exciting plan to fruition."

EK448/449 create a fifth daily option to NZ for Emirates, complementing existing triple daily A380s services to Auckland and the carrier's daily 777-300ER to Christchurch.

Flight time from DXB to AKL is estimated to be just under 16hrs and 17hrs & 15mins on the reverse route.

Emirates is offering customers already booked on services to Dubai and beyond the ability to switch to the new service without additional fees.

Earlier this week, Qatar Airways boss Akbar al Baker revealed the Doha-based carrier was mulling flights to Auckland (TD 27 Jan).

VA pulls BNE/CLI

VANUATU is counting on a loan from the World Bank for about US$60 million to fast-track the upgrade of Port Vila's Bauerfield Airport runway (TD Wed), as another direct air service from Australia was cancelled on Thu by Virgin Australia.

The loan would cover a full-scale rehabilitation of the runway, to be carried out over several months, Radio New Zealand International reports.

VA flagged concern over the state of VLI's runway on Mon, but following a further review on Wed said it will suspend services between Brisbane and Vanuatu, "until we have greater confidence that the runway will be maintained appropriately. "We will operate a return service between Brisbane and Vanuatu on Sat 30 Jan available to guests returning to their port of origin," Virgin Australia said.

Booked customers to/from Vanuatu are being offered refunds, change of destination or travel credit.

Hawaii visitor data

HAWAII welcomed 8.6 million visitors in 2015, a 4.6% increase over 2014, according to latest statistics released by the Hawaii Tourism Authority (HTA).

Visitor expenditure jumped to record heights last year, with HTA recording a total of $15.2 billion, an increase of 2.3% year on year.

Australian visitor arrivals soared 7.8% in 2015 to 333,998.

In Dec, Aussie arrivals rose 3.4% to 30,174, coinciding with a 10.5% jump in scheduled seat capacity from the Oceania region, including a 36% upgauge ex Melbourne, 27% boost from Brisbane and 2% rise ex Sydney.

APT opens bookings

BOOKINGS are now open for APT's luxury European river cruise and land journeys for 2017.

APT's Europe Pre-Release brochure includes deals on flights to Europe starting from $795 per person, and a choice of more than 30 itineraries including the 15-Day Magnificent Europe and Wonders of Bordeaux & Rhone.

Pre release savings are valid until 15 May, 2016.

Local Aman Resorts office

LUXURY global hospitality operator Aman Resorts has for the first time established a dedicated local office, with Elliot Miller appointed as director of Sales, Australia and New Zealand.

Miller, well known to the Australian market after previously representing COMO in Sydney, will report to Aman's global head of sales, Christina Deeny.

The Aman portfolio currently encompasses 30 resorts, hotels and private residences in 20 countries, having grown from its first location in Phuket, Thailand to now include properties as far afield as China, Japan, Montenegro, Greece, Morocco, Turkey, Sri Lanka, the USA and the Dominican Republic.

Miller's role will see him lead sales efforts and activities for the group in Australasia, with particular focus on existing properties such as Amangalla and Amanwella in Sri Lanka; Bali's Amandari, Amankila and Amanusa; Amanpuri in Phuket; and Aman's three China resorts, Amandayan, Amanfayun and Aman Summer Palace.

FJ Paddington pop up

FIJI Airways is bringing a pop-up bar to Sydney next week - complete with kava - to celebrate the first ever visit of the Series Champion Fiji team to Australia.

'The Flying Fijian' will be located at The Olympic Hotel in Paddington, adjacent to Moore Park Stadium, on 05-07 Feb.

LOT plots Bali flights

POLISH flag carrier LOT is planning a series of charter flights to Indonesia between Jun and Oct this year, with non-stop 787-8 services from Warsaw scheduled to operate every two weeks.

JNTO revamps site

THE Japan National Tourism Organization has stepped up its promotion within Australia, with a makeover of its local website and the launch of a consumer competition.

The 'Magic Sakura' campaign is described as a "mini-game where players can plant, grow and nurture their very own virtual cherry blossom tree," with one lucky player winning the prize including return ANA flights, six nights accommodation and two Japan Rail Passes courtesy of H.I.S. Australia.

The website has been expanded and rearranged.

JNTO Sydney executive director, Mariko Tatsumi, said the organisation had also boosted its presence on social media via the @VisitJapanAU handles.

Tatsumi also flagged the future roll-out of a new e-learning program for travel agents - see www.jnto.org.au.

Window Seat

AUTHORITIES in New Zealand are serious about the road toll - and in particular reducing accidents involving tourists.

New maps on display above urinals in public toilets across the South Canterbury region highlight local traffic black spots, along with safety notices and driving tips 14 languages.

The initiative is the brainchild of local road safety coordinator Daniel Naude, who said he believes toilets provide a captive audience, being "a good read for 30 seconds when there's nothing to do".

Someone clearly likes the idea, with one of the maps already stolen from a toilet at the popular tourist spot, Tekapo.

"Maybe they liked the frame or something," Naude said.

Enter the Cathay Dragon!

CATHAY Pacific this morning confirmed speculation that Dragonair, its wholly owned sister carrier, will be rebranded as Cathay Dragon (TD yesterday).

CX said the move would help "capitalise on Cathay Pacific's strong international brand recognition," as well as leverage on the offshoot's unique connectivity into mainland China.

Cathay Pacific took over Dragonair in 2006 and since then it has added 23 new destinations, boosting passenger numbers fivefold to over 7 million last year.

"We are very proud of what we have achieved together," said CX ceo Ivan Chu.

"The rebranding will enable us to capture the fast-growing passenger flows across the two carriers by creating a more seamless travel experience".

New livery for Cathay Dragon (above) will feature a "Cathay-style brushwing logo" which will start to appear from Apr.

QF Prem Econ sale

QANTAS has today launched a limited-time Premium Economy sale, offering special fares from Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane to selected international destinations.

HU plotting Calgary

CHINESE travellers may soon be stampeding to Canada, with Hainan Airlines planning a new non-stop route between Beijing and Calgary.

GDS screens indicate the new service would operate thrice weekly using 787-8 aircraft.

Although the schedules have been loaded, reservations are not yet open for the new flights.

Singapore scanning

ALL travellers to Singapore will be fingerprinted upon entry to the city-state by air, land or sea effective from Jun this year.

The move to beef up border security was announced to Singapore's parliament this week by Senior Minister of State for Home Affairs, Desmond Lee.

The fingerprint scans will enable immigration authorities "to verify the traveller's identity before he is allowed entry into Singapore".

Lee said the system would also facilitate automated self-clearance during departure.

With Singapore being a major transport hub in the region, more than 500,000 people pass through the country's checkpoints every day, Lee added, presenting significant security risks for authorities.

"Attackers can gather and plan just outside Singapore before coming into Singapore to carry out the attack," he warned.

Tassie floating hotel

ECO-TOURISM adventure firm Tasmanian Boat Charters has inked a lease and licence deal with the Tasmanian Government to launch a new vessel in Hobart.

Called Odalisque, the “floating boutique hotel” will provide visitors to Tasmania a chance to explore remote and rugged Port Davey and Bathurst Harbour - areas previously out of reach for many travellers.

Due to the 20m vessel’s minimal footprint, the company has been given the green light to moor within the Port Davey area of South West National Park.

From Odalisque, visitors have an opportunity to explore the areas wilderness with expert guides, go scuba diving, kayak or bird watch, enjoying world-class produce prepared by an on board chef.

Available as a charter for three-, five- or seven-days, Odalisque will operate from Feb to May only.

Customers will access the boat by aircraft to Melaleuca for the short ride to Port Davey - more at tasmanianboatcharters.com.au.

Accor: 25 years in OZ

ACCORHOTELS will mark 25 years in Australia this year with plans to recognise this milestone with a series of celebrations throughout 2016.

The hotel juggernaut debuted in Australia with the opening of Novotel Sydney Darling Harbour in Jul 1991.

In the last quarter of a century, AccorHotels has proved to be a significant contributor to Australia’s tourism sector, employing more than 10,000 staff in over 200 hotels, and attracting 1.62m loyalty members.

The company’s Asia Pacific chairman and ceo Michael Issenberg said it had been an “incredible journey” starting with one hotel to becoming “the number one operator”.

He also acknowledged strong relationships with hotel owners, staff members and industry partners as keys to success.

Technology Update

Today's Technology Update is brought to you by Tramada Systems Pty. Ltd.

A picture paints a thousand words.

This saying is never truer than when sifting through reams of travel data to try to understand metrics like your clients' travel spend behaviours or analysing corporate travel policy compliance.

Data visualisation, employed by Business Intelligence (BI) systems, uses charts, colours and maps to help you spot trends, patterns or variances in data easily.

The biggest challenge to support good decision making is collecting and correcting the underlying data. Booking transaction automation within tramada® solves this. Data is already captured in one place and integrity is maintained with robust workflows.

There are many types of charts to analyse data, from simple line graphs to sophisticated analytical charts that represent complex data relationships. tramada® connect BI has over 47 chart types to choose from and lets you customise these using filters, conditional formatting and queries to explore trends or highlight exceptions.

Monitoring real time Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) is critical for many decision makers. This is easily solved with dashboards. Dashboards are a collection of high level charts that monitor KPIs or other business information like average travel spend by segment type. With tramada® connect BI, decision makers can drill down to real-time booking data.

TMC's can share these visual reports with their corporate clients enhancing their customer offering.

Contact sales@tramada.com to discover how to visualise your travel data.
