PMC freeze welcomed

INDUSTRY groups have welcomed the Senate's commitment to a five-year freeze on any future increases in the Passenger Movement Charge (PMC), despite yesterday's loss in the battle to prevent a $5 hike.

The Tourism & Transport Forum, AFTA & Australian Tourism Export Council have endorsed yesterday's developments in Fed Parliament, which resulted in the PMC being lifted to $60.

"While any tax increase is disappointing, we now have certainty and a freeze for five years on the holiday tax," said TTF ceo Margy Osmond.

"The holiday tax is a $1 billion charge on the tourism industry and it is growing at 5% a year.

"There was absolutely no economic justification for this tax hike," she said, adding that TTF had thanked several Senators for opposing the increase.

AFTA ceo Jayson Westbury said the industry had demonstrated that it would not stand for being treated as a "cash cow".

"A freeze on the holiday tax at $60 is the second best outcome we were hoping for but it nevertheless will provide the travel and tourism industry with certainty that there should not be any surprise holiday tax hikes on Budget night over the next five years," Westbury said.

AFTC md Peter Shelley welcomed the Senate's vote to reduce the planned backpacker tax to 10%, however this is now uncertain after the Lower House rejected the move last night.

It is unclear whether this will affect the PMC decision when Parliament resumes next week.

Ctrip buys Skyscanner

CHINESE travel giant Ctrip this morning confirmed it will acquire flight meta-search engine Skyscanner for US$1.74 billion.

Skyscanner has a number of key investors including Malaysia's sovereign wealth fund Khazanah Nasional Bhd, Sequoia Capital and Yahoo Japan.

Ctrip ceo Jane Jie Sun said Skyscanner was profitable, with 'healthy' margins and the deal would significantly expand the company's global footprint.

A funeral will take place at Ann Willson Funerals in Mona Vale, NSW next Tue 29 Nov at 2pm.

NZ tests WLG consent

WELLINGTON City Council's proposal to extend the Kiwi capital's airport runway is being scrutinised by Air New Zealand chief strategy, networks and alliances officer Stephen Jones.

WLG has proposed to extend its runway by 354m which would enable the airport to receive direct long-haul flights from Asia, and possibly the United States, Stuff.co.nz reports.

Jones said the application made by Wellington Airport "not only fails to present the full facts but also contains serious analytical flaws".

Air NZ will today notify the Environment Court it will seek to be represented at the upcoming hearings by filing a S274 notice before the 5pm deadline.

Meriton defends masking

MERITON has defended the practice of 'masking' emails after the ACCC yesterday launched Federal Court action alleging misleading conduct (TD 24 Nov).

In a statement, Meriton said it had been cooperating with the ACCC since the issue was first brought to its attention in 2015.

The consumer and competition watchdog yesterday alleged Meriton had taken steps to prevent guests from posting negative reviews on TripAdvisor by inserting additional letters in guest email addresses in a process known as 'masking'.

"The masking of emails is a critical business tool intended to be used to ensure marketing paraphernalia is not sent to guests which were 'blacklisted'," Meriton said.

"Reasons for blacklisting include fraudulent, illegal or anti-social behaviour towards other guests or staff.

"When it was discovered that the system had been overused or improperly used, Meriton took immediate steps to revise its internal procedures."

The company said it had more than one million guests per year and the number of incidents of concern was comparatively low.

MEANWHILE, consumer advocate CHOICE has welcomed the ACCC court action.

"If Meriton is found to have taken steps to prevent unhappy customers from posting their experiences online, we'd like to see the Federal Court issue the maximum penalty," CHOICE head of media Tom Godfrey said.

P&O five-ship record

P&O Cruises has achieved a 55% increase in passenger numbers since boosting its Australian fleet to five ships last Nov.

In the year since Pacific Aria and Pacific Eden made their debut, the line has carried a record 460,000 guests in regional waters.

The two extra ships allowed P&O to use Cairns as a homeport for the first time in Sep and saw the return of Asian cruises with Pacific Eden offering a season from Singapore.

"It was a big leap to expand our capacity by more than 50 per cent but we knew the demand was there," said P&O Cruises president Sture Myrmell.

Aria and Eden have carried 160,000 guests between them.

More LH strikes

MEMBERS of pilots union Vereinigung Cockpit who went on strike on Wed (TD Wed) will do so again on Sat.

Action is now planned for all long-haul Lufthansa flights from Germany, with short and medium-haul flights unaffected.

The first three days of the strike saw 2,618 flight cancellations and over 315,000 passengers affected.

Individual flights within Germany and Europe may be cancelled as a result of the previous days' strike.

Eurowings, Germanwings, SWISS, Austrian Airlines, Air Dolomiti and Brussels Airlines are not affected by the action.

Pax can find out if their flights are operating as planned on LH.com & on the Lufthansa app.

EY/X3 JV approved by board

A SUPERVISORY Board has given TUI Group the go ahead to create a new leisure airline venture with Etihad.

The partnership would see TUI Group spin off its German airline TUIfly into a separate company, with Etihad currently in negotiations with airberlin to include it in the joint venture.

Headquartered in Vienna, the yet-to-be-named airline will have a fleet of around 60 aircraft and service tourist destinations from hubs in Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

Under the agreement, TUI AG would hold a stake of 24.8% in the new business and Etihad would hold 25% of the interests, while the remaining 50.2% to remain with existing private foundation, NIKI Privatstiftung.

Commenting on the new collaboration, a spokesman for TUI Group said 'the commitments made to the TUIfly employees remain in place and are currently being further negotiated and specified'.

Final contractual negotiations between stakeholders are expected to be completed in the next few weeks, with details to be jointly presented by Etihad and TUI shortly thereafter.

The planned joint venture is still subject to approval by antitrust and aviation authorities.

Window Seat

GUESTS at last night's China Eastern Airlines' celebration at Lotus restaurant in Sydney (see page 5) were given the opportunity to taste one of the carrier's flagship aircraft.

The extravagant event offered a delectable seven-course menu including two dessert options for guests, including Travel Daily.

Both were divine, however the menu descriptions had us scratching our heads, with the very pretty and extremely rich 'Chocolate Lotus' (pictured) captioned as "A decadent sweet to compliment the luxury of Boeing 777-300ER".

The other option - an Azure Dragon Heart - was also designed to reflect the relationship "between Boeing & China Eastern as they launch the new aircraft".

Double Collette Cash grab

IN CELEBRATION of Thanksgiving, Collette is giving agents the chance to earn double the amount of Collette Cash.

Group Australian business manager Alison Mead said the US-based company was an important holiday for Collette.

"We have a lot to be thankful for," she said, "we have experienced excellent growth in the Australian market and what better way to share our success than to reward our hardworking agents".

The Collette Cash gives agents the opportunity to earn $500 for every deposited booking made between now and 31 Dec to put towards a tour of their choice valued up to $4,000.

The incentive is valid for bookings made between 15 Oct & 31 Dec for travel on departures through until 30 Apr 2018.

China Eastern beds down Aus

CHINA Eastern Airlines' ongoing route additions and capacity increases to its Australian ports are likely to only keep going up, says the airlines general manager for Oceania, Kathy Zhang.

Last night, the SkyTeam carrier celebrated its 60th anniversary of operation and 20 year milestone of flying to Australia with a fancy soiree at Lotus in Sydney.

This week China Eastern penned a fresh terminology for its beefed up presence in Australia - new routes to Sydney from Hangzhou, Wuhan, Kunming and increased capacity from Shanghai & Beijing - as the Boomerang route.

MU's 'Boomerang' route refers directly to the increased flights, Zhang explained to Travel Daily.

"Our flights have flown between China and Australia for 20 years.

"Like a boomerang, we keep coming back with more flights, and more passengers," she said.

Zhang pointed out the new capacity is not seasonal frequencies, "it's scheduled," which suggests it's here to stay.

Four weekly flights from Shanghai to Brisbane launch in a month's time, and services will move to daily in Jan and Feb.

She told TD that China Eastern very much intends to keep the new BNE route as a seven weekly service as new hardware is added.

"Twenty years ago we only operated two flights weekly between China and Sydney.

"Now we operate 58 flights per week Australia-wide."

Quizzed about potential new routes, Zhang said all Australian capital cities were on the radar including Perth & even Canberra.

"The possibility is always there.

"With increased communications between the two countries we will have more business opportunities," she said.

Zhang is particularly excited about the launch of MU's Boeing 777-300ER product to Melbourne and Sydney, which along with a bump up in capacity will see the debut of the carrier's First class open suites product.

The unique First class cabin on the 777-300ER is equipped with six seats, two of which can be converted to a double bed (a replica of the product on display at last night's event is pictured).
