Livn product GDS roll out

AUSTRALIAN tour and activity aggregator Livn has activated a new integration with Amadeus, enabling travel agents to book its products in real-time via the GDS.

The "ground-breaking" link between Livn and the Amadeus Selling Platform Connect provides Amadeus-connected consultants with the seamless ability to book 19,000 global tours and activities from suppliers including Intrepid Group, G Adventures, Disney, Gray Line, Pro-Dive & Tourism Holding.

Initially deployed in Australia and NZ, the tie-up is seen as "a lucrative new income stream in a challenging marketplace".

Livn co-founder Steve Martinez said the Amadeus partnership "dramatically expands our travel agency distribution footprint and is great for our partners".

"We have managed to automate the entire tours and activities booking process with the existing Amadeus workflow with instant confirmations and ticketing being returned in seconds," he said.

Amadeus IT Pacific md Tony Carter said the Livn integration enabled agents to earn additional commission via GDS by securing in-destination experiences, with instant confirmation and pricing.

"Until now the fragmented nature of the tour and activity business has always made it difficult for agents to book these products. But that's changed with the Livn integration," Carter said.

The connection was trialled with key agents (travelbulletin Aug).

Among Livn's other co-founders are Tui Eruera, the founder and managing director of Si Holidays.

$40b int'l tourist spend

OVERSEAS visitors to Australia spent a record $40.6 billion over the 12 months ending Jun, jumping over 7% y-o-y, data from Tourism Research Australia's latest International Visitor Survey released today shows.

The figures come as record numbers of int'l tourists flock to Australian shores, with visitors staying longer & spending more.

The number of nights the 7.9m overseas travellers stayed in Australia rose 7.3% to 266 million.

All states & territories shared in the record growth, with the ACT and Tasmania achieving the strongest increase, rising 27% and 24% respectively on last year.

Foreign visitor expenditure in NSW was a whopping $10.1b (up 11%) from four million arrivals, a result that was billed as "epic" by NSW Minister for Tourism and Major Events Adam Marshall.

Spending was also up 11% in Victoria to $7.4 billion, followed by Queensland (up 3% to $5.2b), Western Australia (up 8% to $2.5b) and South Australia (up 12% to $1.06b).

Tourists from China continue to drive the spending, with 1.2m visitors ploughing a quarter of the total figure (a massive $9.8b) in to the economy - both results increasing 10% year-on-year.

Arrivals from the USA reached record levels, topping 706,000, which was up 14%, and injecting a hefty $3.8 billion in Australia.

Spending by New Zealanders was flat at $2.7 billion, while UK expenditure dropped 8% to $3.5b.

Federal Minister for Trade, Tourism & Infrastructure Steven Ciobo said the overall figure was a "stellar result".

"During the past three years spending by international visitors has increased by 34% as the Coalition continues to provide record funding to Tourism Australia," Ciobo remarked.

Window Seat

CHINESE travellers might be taking to the air in record numbers, but few have had the sort of adventure experienced by farmer Yin Yanlei this week.

The 29-year-old from the north-east province of Jilin was rescued by police on Mon after flying 50km in a hydrogen balloon he had been using to harvest pine cones.

The Hong Kong Free Press reports Yin had purchased the balloon online for $3,800 and had been on board with his brother when a strong gust of wind took them away.

The pair's mother had been holding a rope and was lifted off the ground, breaking her leg as she fell back to earth.

Though the brother jumped to safety, Yin was left trapped.

He used his phone to record a video message to his wife before puncturing the balloon to release its hydrogen, allowing it to drift safely down to a waiting team of rescuers.

BER opening date

BERLIN Brandenburg Airport is expected to be completed in Aug 2018 and be operational at some in 2019, operators Flughafen Berlin Brandenburg have confirmed.

Construction started on the controversial airport in 2006, with an opening date of Oct 2011, but a series of delays pushed the opening back many years.

Plans to open the airport this year have been scrapped.

BER's chief exec Engelbert Luetke Daldrup said tests would need to be done after construction was finished.

The project is expected to cost over $8 billion, $5 billion more than original cost of $2.8 billion.

BER was planned to replace Tegel and Schoenefeld airports.

MEANWHILE Qatar Airways will operate a Boeing 777-300ER on its Doha to Berlin Tegel service between now and Oct.

QR has 358 seats on its two class Boeing 777-300ER aircraft.

DEVELOPER Destination

Brisbane Consortium has filed an application seeking approval for buildings up to 74 storeys high for the Queen's Wharf project in the Brisbane CBD (pictured).

If successful, the $3b project would allow for 600 more hotel rooms than previously proposed.

In the original application, the developers had planned on building 1,000 hotel rooms.

The development application submitted to the Queensland state government has now opened for the public to provide comment on the proposal at the Government precinct.

As per the plan, the firm has proposed towers as high as 265 metres, which is nine metres short of the AirServices Australia-mandated height limit of 274m.

The Queen's Wharf site will include a casino, resort complex, hotel, bar, park, shops, residential, parking, a microbrewery, a major sport, recreation and entertainment facility, and a cross-river pedestrian bridge to South Bank.

The resort is expected to open during 2022, with the final project to be completed by 2024.

CAAT suspends 16 airlines over safety

SIXTEEN airlines registered in Thailand have failed safety and related regulatory assessments conducted by the Civil Aviation Authority of Thailand (CAAT).

This has required them to suspend their operations until they get new Air Operator's Certificates (AOCs).

The move is part of a crack down by the CAAT, with the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) due to send the delegates to inspect Thailand's new safety standards.

The ICAO put a red flag on the country's safety standards in 2015.

Thailand has faced a shortage of qualified training and aviation officials following years of increased demand for air travel.

Over the past eight months it has phased out its five 64-seat ATR-72 aircraft as the new 78-seat Q400s took flight.

The completion comes as Island Air prepares to celebrate its 37th anniversary of service to Hawaii this weekend, on 09 Sep.

Insight culinary experience

INSIGHT Vacations is set to launch its 2018 Europe and Britain collection next week but provided a sneak peek of what to expect at an intimate gathering in Sydney yesterday.

Speaking to media, Insight Vacations md Alex O'Connor said culinary experiences would be a focal point for guests in 2018 with several new innovations revealed.

"What we'll be focusing on is the experiences on the ground with locals and in particular the dining story," she said.

O'Connor referred to three new areas introduced in the 2018 program including the ability to dine at the home of a local who would prepare and serve a meal.

A farm-to-table experience had been introduced where guests could meet with local farmers and growers before sampling their produce, while a new partnership with VizEat had been formed so that travellers could connect with local foodies (TD 07 Jun).

"Food is such an important part of what people are looking for when they travel these days," O'Connor said.

"They're looking for critical food and wine experiences."

A major sales promotion would coincide with the official release of the brochure on Mon, O'Connor said.

2018 EUROPE & UK EARLY BIRD SALE

Albatross Tours have just released their 2018 Europe & UK Small Group Tour programme offering early bird discounts of $700 per couple if booked and deposited prior to 31 October 2017.

Albatross Tours believe their small group size coupled with longer stays and genuinely inclusive prices will be a very attractive option to travellers seeking a more fulfilling European holiday experience.

"Every Albatross tour has the same formula and has been designed with the Australian and New Zealand traveller in mind; small groups travelling fewer kilometres per day allowing more 'My Time' for sightseeing and relaxing. A more leisurely pace with two to five night stays in each location, and categorically no later charged optional excursions" said Euan Landsborough, Managing Director of Albatross Tours.
