FCTG takes 100% of LDV

FLIGHT Centre Travel Group (FCTG) has continued its expansion in North America by taking full ownership of Canada's corporate and premium leisure business, Les Voyages Laurier du Vallon (LDV).

FCTG secured a 75% interest in LDV in Aug 2017 (TD 03 Aug 2017), with an agreement for the remainder to be acquired under the terms of a rolling put/call option.

MD Graham Turner said the Quebec City-based company had proven to be a valuable addition to FCTG's network.

"In addition to delivering solid earnings growth over the past two years, its corporate travel presence has enhanced our already strong customer offering across Canada and throughout North America in general.

"In leisure travel, LDV's premium offering, which is similar to the highly successful Travel Associates model we use in some other countries, has complemented the Flight Centre branded offering in Canada and allowed us to target a broader customer base in this fairly large market," he added.

The acquisition's terms have not been disclosed, but FCTG will release its 2019 fiscal year results on 22 Aug and has already flagged a record profit contribution from its North American business.

In Apr FCTG said its Americas business was closing in on a profit in excess of $100m for FY19.

Last month FCTG took 100% ownership of European corporate travel business 3Mundi (TD 01 Jul).

Helloworld, VA deal

HELLOWORLD Travel has confirmed it has entered into a preferred partnership deal with Virgin Australia.

The company said it was “pleased to add Virgin Australia to our extensive air offering”.

Virgin Australia told TD it was “delighted to join Helloworld Travel’s Preferred Partnerships and offer our products and services to its customers”.

Dream Newcastle

DREAM Cruises has paused sales for Explorer Dream’s scheduled Newcastle departures after the line was advised by port authorities that they are unable to support the disembarkation of passengers and their goods at the Port of Newcastle, due to new biosecurity legislation.

The line said it was working closely with the relevant govt authorities and would continue to update trade partners and pax.

Brand USA funding bill

BRAND USA is a step closer to being reauthorised, with a bill to reinstate funding for the country’s destination marketing organisation through 2027 being passed by the US Senate committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation last month.

The organisation’s future funding was axed by the Trump administration in Feb 2018, to be redeployed into border controls under a budget cap deal.

Under the bill, the previous $14 Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) fee - paid by travellers arriving from visa waiver program countries - would reportedly be raised to $21.

A new fee structure would see $4 go to Customs and Border Protection, $7 to Brand USA, which would max out at $100 million and the remaining $10 to the general fund.

The new structure would see Brand USA receive $3 less per ESTA fee, but the amount going to Customs and Border Protection remain the same.

Tori Barnes, Executive Vice President of Public Affairs and Policy of the US Travel Association, which lobbies on behalf of Brand USA said the timing of the bill was crucial.

“Travel’s economic benefits are threatened by a declining share of the global travel market, which dropped from 13.7% in 2015 to its current 11.7%—a decline that represents a difference of 14 million visitors, a hit to the economy of $59 billion in spending and 120,000 American jobs,” Barnes said.

“This bill is vital to ensuring the future of America’s travel planning and promotion—and the livelihoods of the 15.7 million Americans whose jobs are supported by this industry.”

The funding for Brand USA was set to expire in 2020.

Travel Daily on location in the Arctic

Today’s issue of TD is coming to you courtesy of Hurtigruten Cruises, aboard the new MS Roald Amundsen.

EARLY this morning the Roald Amundsen arrived on Iceland’s west coast, after crossing from Greenland to visit the Snaefellsnes Peninsula.

After a week exploring the remotest reaches of Greenland on the ship’s Explorer Boat fleet, today we undertake more traditional shore excursions, with one group undertaking the intriguingly-named “Hiking in the Beserk Lavafelds”.

There’s also a “Caves, Craters and Coves” trip taking guests to local subterranean highlights.

Tonight Roald Amundsen cruises the Icelandic coastline to end our voyage in Reykjavik.

IATA's NDC matchmaker

THE International Air Transport Association (IATA) has launched an online NDC Matchmaker tool to enable airlines, agents and content aggregators to search, compare and connect with New Distribution Capability (NDC) partners.

IATA's Director, Industry Distribution Programs, Yanik Hoyles, said the free tool was designed to increase transparency to the marketplace and facilitate cooperation between different participants in the industry.

"The NDC Matchmaker responds to corporate travel buyers' need to have greater insight into airlines, travel sellers and aggregators participating in the NDC space," he said.

"It is also about companies being able to be showcased through a user-friendly tool."

The NDC Matchmaker currently includes more than 80 NDC connections between airlines and their travel seller partners.

Participants can display their NDC content and partnerships and be searched by category as airlines/sellers/aggregators; by type of products and services available; or by country.

"The more companies that use it, the more benefits it will create for the travel value chain," said Hoyles.

The NDC Matchmaker was premiered at the Global Business Travel Association 2019 Convention in Chicago, which started on 03 Aug.

The concept was put forward by IATA's Travel Manager Advisory Group, to address the challenges, opportunities and benefits of NDC for corporate travel buyers.

Solomons big push

TOURISM Solomons and Solomons Airlines will be targeting Australian travellers over the next eight weeks as part of a TV and online campaign aimed at making the country a "must visit destination".

The campaign will run across the Seven Network in South-east Queensland and Northern NSW, while consumers in the ACT, Melbourne and Sydney will be targeted with YouTube ads directing viewers to Go Tours.

No VA stake for TK

TURKISH Airlines has shut down speculation that it was interested in HNA Group's 20% stake in Virgin Australia, saying in a statement these reports "do not reflect the truth."

"We share our objectives of developing our business partnerships in the Asia-Pacific region with our stakeholders," the carrier said.

Window Seat

SOUTHWEST has earned itself a reputation for having the best sense of humour in the sky, but the US low-cost carrier may have crossed the line recently.

When passengers boarded a flight to Philadelphia from Nashville on Tue, they were bewildered to find a flight attendant in the overhead locker.

According to one passenger, who documented the experience, she was in position for "a solid 10 minutes".

Hong Kong protest

A LARGE strike is taking place in Hong Kong today, which the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade (DFAT) has warned may impact the airport and other transport services.

The demonstration is part of ongoing protests which last month hit Hong Kong International Airport (TD 26 Jul).

DFAT has urged Australians who may be affected by this development to check for updates with their airline or tour operator.

DFAT on Fri noted the risk of confrontations between opposing groups of protestors and police or criminally-linked individuals was increasing, with notice and predictability of the protests decreasing.

The level of advice remains at "exercise normal safety precautions" and DFAT strongly recommends avoiding large public gatherings.

Hyatt to return to Adelaide

THE Hyatt brand will return to Adelaide in 2023, with Hyatt Hotels Corporation entering into a management agreement with Chip Eng Seng Corporation's CES Pirie Hotel for a newbuild.

Construction is planned to commence in 2020, with the new location on Pirie Street set to play host to 295 rooms, a cafe, Hyatt Regency Club, swimming pool, fitness facilities, rooftop bar and more than 750m<sup>2</sup> of event space.

"We are grateful to work with CES Pirie Hotel on the opening of the new Hyatt Regency Adelaide," said Hyatt President Asia Pacific David Udell.

"Located in Adelaide's city centre, the hotel will provide guests with the tools to stay connected and benefit from the hotel's intuitive and personalised service," he said.
