Funnies Flashback

WE'VE trawled through the TD Window Seat archives to give you blast from the past. Here's some gems from 12 Jun 2013:

THE US Travel Association is seeing significant cut-through in a lobbying campaign aiming to get more government funding for customs and border patrol officers for arriving passengers.

Aiming to address the huge wait times experienced in peak travel periods at key gateways, the USTA sent an "arrival survival kit" to key politicians and government officials.

The kit included a copy of Tolstoy's epic novel War and Peace, a bottle of Gatorade for hydration and some No-Doz to make sure people didn't fall asleep in line.

Unsurprisingly, a number of bills currently before Congress include funding for several thousand new CBP officers. IPW, standing for International Pow Wow, is now the official name of the US annual trade show, which has this year rebranded from its longstanding name of simply Pow Wow.

However some habits are very hard to break, and there's an imaginary "swear jar" for people who inadvertently refer to it by its former name.

At a press conference this morning US Travel Association CEO Roger Dow quipped that "we've already raised $16 million from the swear jar".

It wouldn't happen in Australia.

Whose flag is this?

THERE are not many flags that feature a book, a hoe and a gun. The designers of this country's flag definitely were more imaginative than your usual three colour flag creators, although some of the nation's residents have proposed removing these icons.

Do you know whose flag this is?
