Funnies Flashback

WE'VE trawled through the TD Window Seat archives to give you blast from the past. Here's some gems from 17 Jul 2014:

TRANSPORTATION Security Administration officers at Orlando Airport in the USA are set to undergo some special geography lessons, after one of them demanded a passport as identification from a traveller based in Washington, DC.

Apparently the official thought that the District of Columbia was based overseas, and didn't accept the passenger's drivers license as a form of ID.

Unfortunately the incident gathered significant attention in the media, because the traveller in question happened to be a newspaper reporter.

AUSTRALIA Zoo on the Sunshine Coast is claiming a major psychic victory, after one of its resident kangaroos managed to correctly predict the outcome of the soccer World Cup earlier this week.

For every major match the roo, with the assistance of Bindi Irwin, selects between two food bowls representing the opposing teams, and has apparently achieved some uncanny results during the tournament.

The Eastern Grey kangaroo, formerly named Flopsy, now carries the catchy moniker of "Predictaroo" and has more than 18,000 Twitter @Predictaroo followers and her own web page.

Where in the world?

WHEN you think of a sculpture commemorating bureaucrats, this monument probably wouldn't be what you expect - usually it's great statemen on horseback.

Can you tell us where you would find this unusual artwork?

Check tomorrow for the answer.
