Whose flag is this?

THIS nation has had many flags during its history.

The first flag, used in 1921, had black, white and green horizontal stripes with a red triangle on the left.

It was then modified with the triangle being truncated and two white seven-pointed stars being added.

In 1959, the rulers were overthrown and a new flag was established with the same colours but in vertical rather than horizontal stripes and central yellow sun with eight red rays.

Finally, something very similar to this flag, first flown in Egypt, was introduced in 1952, except with three green stars as well as the Arabic script.

The stars were removed in 2004 to leave this flag as the official ensign, and it was adopted formally in 2008.

Do you know whose flag it is?

Funnies Flashback

WE'VE trawled through the TD Window Seat archives to give you a blast from the past. Here's some gems from 28 Jan 2014:

LOUNGE access privileges have been revoked for a man who allegedly used VIP facilities offered by China Eastern Airlines almost every day for a year.

The passenger appears to have purchased a fully refundable first class ticket expressly for the purpose of accessing free food at the China Eastern lounge at Xian Xianyang International Airport in China's Shaanxi province.

According to Malaysia's Kwong Wah Yit Poh Chinese-language newspaper, the man changed his itinerary over 300 times during the year to access the facilities, and eventually cancelled the ticket and obtained a full refund when it was about to expire.
