Whose flag is this?

THIS flag was adopted by the country in 1985 when it became independent from Britain.

The current design is similar to its previous flag, which had the three striped colours but a coat of arms in the centre instead of the three diamonds there now.

The diamonds used in the flag reference the country's name (which starts with V), and the nickname of the nation is "The Jewels of the Caribbean".

The position of them is also deliberately off-centre and represents its geographical positioning.
