Walshe increases stake

INTERESTS associated with the Walshe family have increased their ownership of NZ-listed Southern Travel Holdings to 37.16%, after less than two-thirds of a rights issue was taken up by other shareholders.

Southern Travel Holdings owns representation specialist The Walshe Group as well as several other inbound travel businesses, and Rodney Walshe Limited, owned by chairman Rodney Walshe, agreed to underwrite the issue of ordinary shares to raise NZ$1.13m in additional capital (TD 04 Nov) "to grow the company through strategic investments".

Acceptances were received for 61.67% of the rights, with Walshe underwriting the remainder.

Jacqui Walshe, who heads up the Walshe Group, is also the ceo of Southern Travel.

IASC decisions

THE International Air Services Commission has issued a draft determination today proposing authorisation of QF-Air Niugini codesharing until 30 Jun 2012.

It's also confirmed a decision which allows Pacific Blue to operate daily 737 flights to Phuket.

CATO in Melbourne

THE Council of Australian Tour Operators is reminding members that the RSVP date for its next meeting and Christmas dinner in Melbourne on 10 Dec is tomorrow.

The winner of two Etihad tickets to anywhere on the EY network will be announced Mon.

Accor launch 'Medi Hotel'

ACCOR says its newest property to open in Melbourne's western corridor is about to become a "pioneer in Australia's hotel industry" through its creation of the first 'medi hotel' concept.

The Mercure Caroline Springs will next week open Stage One of two-storey medical centre (which occupies one of the property's wings) and will be operated by celebrity Dr Geoffrey Edelsten.

The first stage of the "nip and tuck" medical centre sees the launch of 20 Harmony medi-spa treatment rooms, before its full completion early next year.

The initiative aims to capture a share of the emerging medical tourism market (TD 03 Sep), and will see patients treated at the centre and accommodated at the 'medi hotel' while they recover.

The new 4-star Mercure features 104 rooms, a 300-seat function and conference centre, a health spa and restaurant spread over 6 levels.

Outback Qld flights

REGIONAL Express & QantasLink were yesterday both awarded routes to service Outback Qld by the Queensland state government.

Rex has been granted the license to operate the 'Northern 1' and 'Northern 2' routes based out of Townsville, which will also see the carrier increase its base there to four Saab 340 B-plus aircraft.

The 'Northern 1' route services communities of Winton and Longreach, while 'Northern 2' services Hughenden, Richmond, Julia Creek and Mount Isa.

GM network strategy and sales Warrick Lodge said Outback Qld "deserves a safe, reliable and high quality airline service" and that Rex would "strive to surpass the quality levels imposed in the tender."

MEANWHILE, QantasLink has won the bid to provide services to Cloncurry in Outback Qld, from Jan 2010 to Mar 2013.

QantasLink plan to operate five weekly return service between Townsville - Mt Isa, via Cloncurry, complemented by a six times weekly Townsville-Mt Isa service.

KE Brisbane cuts

KOREAN Air will reduce frequencies between Brisbane and Seoul during the Northern 2010 Summer season.

The flight currently operates five times per week, but GDS displays now have KE operating three BNE-ICN flights 30 Mar-01 Jun, increasing to four between 02 Jun and 25 Aug, and returning to three per week from 26 Aug.

Window Seat

AN EVENT in Seattle, USA this weekend is being touted as an "all out Aviation GeekFest".

48 lucky plane nerds will be given a special extended tour of the Boeing plant in Everett courtesy of the 'Future of Flight Aviation Center' - and afterwards will be able to bid on two tickets to view the first flight of the 787 Dreamliner, targeted for before year's end.

The official invitation notes that "winners must be flexible as (the) date could change".

ANIMAL activists in South Africa have raised concerns about a plan to bless the stadiums for next year's FIFA World Cup by slaughtering a cow in each one.

The cattle sacrifice idea was raised by the Makhonya Royal Trust, which described the ritual as a "true African" way of making sure the tournament succeeds.

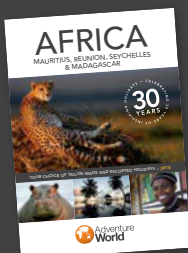

Some groups are totally opposed to the plan, but South Africa's National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has written to FIFA saying it doesn't object to the ritual bloodletting, but wants to ensure it's done in a humane way.

A PLAN to hold a series of "ice parties" on board an iceberg floating north from Antarctica (TD Thu) has melted away after a change in the weather.

A flotilla of icebergs had been drifting towards New Zealand, but strong winds are now blowing them further and further away from the shore.

Aussie pair Phil Meadows and Earl Roberts had announced a now defunct proposal to fly out to the icebergs and charge guests to spend time at a real life "ice bar" as a way of raising awareness of climate change.

Crown bowls industry over

With current building works under way at Crown, the theme for the evening was 'construction' and participants are pictured above in their hunky work gear.

Crown Metropal will open early in 2010, while the extension of the Crown Conference Centre will debut this month, and Crown Towers is also set to showcase a newly enhanced Crystal Club lounge before Christmas.

The winning bowling team was FCM with an average score of 118 points - helped by the leading individual score of a whopping 153 by Luke Alexander.

The leading female player of the evening was CTM's Amanda Jenner with a knock-out 125 pts.

And the winner of the most creatively dressed team award was the group from FBI Travel - "The Stud Finders" and their "Stud".

Bench press into East Africa

BENCH International has rolled out its 2010 Africa program which features an increased focus on packages in Kenya and Tanzania.

The move follows an increased presence in flights to East Africa from Australia thanks to South African Airways, Emirates, Kenya Airways and Qatar Airways.

Product director Fiona Orton said the soon to launch addition of V Australia into Johannesburg and the arrival of Air Austral this year has paved the way for Aussies to explore more beach resorts in the Indian Ocean.

In Tanzania, Bench has added a three-day fly-in safari, a seven-day Serengeti, Lake Manyara and Ngorongoro Crater itinerary and a seven-day walking safari in the Serengeti.

Also new is a 13-day Highlights of East Africa tour that combines Kenya and Tanzania, plus an Exclusive Kenya by Air journey and an eight-day Walking in the Footsteps of the Masai adventure.

Bench has also stepped up its offering in Zimbabwe, introducing a deluxe fly-in safari that visits Victoria Falls, Hwange NP and the Mana Pools region.

Vatulele value

CORAL Seas has just released a special at the five star Vatulele Island Resort, from $2499 for four nights including Air Pacific flights, air transfers, all meals and most activities, for bookings by 15 Dec and travel 19 Jan-23 Mar 2010 - more information 1800 641 803.

Thalys speeding up

EUROPEAN high-speed rail service Thalys will be getting faster this month with the train shedding some 51 minutes off its current Paris-Amsterdam route from 13 Dec, while the Brussels-Amsterdam route will also be sliced by 49 minutes making the trip just under two hours.

LHR on the buses

A NEW agreement between various London authorities will see five bus routes to London Heathrow Airport starting earlier from next week.

British Airways, airport owner BAA, as well as Transport for London and the London Borough of Hillingdon are jointly funding timetable changes to routes 350, 423, 482, 490 and 555 so they start up to 90 minutes earlier.

The changes will allow airport workers and passengers to get to Heathrow at 4am, when many early shifts and check-in times now commence at the airport.
