Parkroyal MEL Arpt

PAN Pacific Hotel Group has confirmed plans to acquire the 276-room Hilton Melbourne Airport hotel and rebadge it under the Parkroyal brand next year (TD Fri).

PPHG ce Patrick Imbardelli said the acquisition demonstrates the hotelier's commitment to growing its Australian portfolio, and as an airport property will expose the Parkroyal name to both inbound and outbound travellers.

Diamond arrival

PRINCESS Cruises' megaliner Diamond Princess has arrived in Sydney today ahead of her 2011 season of 12-night voyages between Australia and NZ.

Diamond is expected to inject over $3m into Sydney's economy from now until late Feb 2011.

Aussies to NZ up

AUSTRALIAN visitor numbers to New Zealand rose slightly during Nov, up 0.1% year-on-year to 84,625, according to latest stats.

The average Aussie trip was eight days long, and the average spend was NZ$1,650pp for visits, year ending Sep 2010.

Visitor arrivals for the first eleven months of the year are up by 4.4%, sitting at 1,115,408.

TCF slams NT government

THE Travel Compensation Fund has criticized the Northern Territory Government for its decision 14 years ago to make participation in the fund for NT-based travel agents optional.

The call comes after the recent demise of Top End Escapes (TD 15 Nov) with client losses now in the realms of $700,000, leaving many out of pocket and some unlikely to receive compensation.

The NT is the only Australian State or Territory where there is no TCF or similar protection for consumers, should a travel agent collapse, said TCF ceo Glen Wells.

"The reason the NT is not part of the TCF scheme is that, after almost all of the necessary arrangements were made for the NT to join the TCF in 1996, the then NT Government decided to accommodate demands by some local travel agents to make TCF participation optional," Wells said.

Viva! Euro product

VIVA! Holidays has released its 2011 European brochure product, showcasing a selection of hotels, sightseeing, touring and transfers - see page eight for details.

in last Friday's TCF bulletin.

Participation in the TCF is mandatory for all licensed travel agents, but the NT government "was not prepared to become part of the scheme on that basis, and never joined," he said.

Creditors are owed between $2m-$3m from Top End Escapes, and have been advised to contact PPB Chartered Accountants in Adelaide with proof of debts.

Consumers who paid for their travel arrangements by credit card can seek compensation by disputing the transaction through their CC provider.

QF domestic up 6%

QANTAS has today announced a 6.4% rise in domestic pax numbers for Nov, to 1,488,000, compared to the same time last year.

QF's int'l figures slipped 0.6% to 479,000, no doubt as a result of having most of its fleet of A380s out of service during the month.

QF Europe waiver

QANTAS Airways says it's still experiencing significant delays on services between Australia and Europe due to snowstorms.

QF is now advising pax departing up until 24 Dec 2010 that they can make ticket changes including re-routing travel or rebooking new travel dates, up to 31 Jan.

Pax can also retain the value of the ticket in credit for up to 12 months should they wish to postpone travel arrangement.

MEANWHILE across the English Channel, Brussels Airport says it's about to run out of plane de-icing fluid, which may mean jets on the tarmac at BRU will be stranded for several more days.

According to reports, it takes at least 800 litres of de-icing fluid to wash away accumulated snow on wide-body aircraft.

The situation is hampered by the closure to major roadways in parts of Belgium and neighbouring countries, as the de-icing fluid needs to be transported by truck from France.

Engine inspections

THE European Aviation Safety Agency has announced it will relax its intensive inspections of Airbus A380 Rolls-Royce Trent 900 engines over the next week.

The final directive is still to be finalised but a spokesperson for EASA said the inspections, that have been occurring after every 20 flights rather than the normal 100, have disrupted A380 schedules.

QANTAS' newest Airbus A380 is named after aviation pioneer Charles Ulm (TD Mon), not Umm.

JQ interlines with CX/KA

JETSTAR is forging ahead with its Asian expansion, this morning announcing two new interline deals with Cathay Pacific (CX) and Dragonair (KA) on flights into the Chinese market.

The deal will provide CX pax on its 18 daily services between Hong Kong and Australia, New Zealand and Vietnam, access to Jetstar's domestic or international sectors in a single integrated transaction.

It also covers extensive services to North Asia with Dragonair.

"This will be particularly attractive for Hong Kong and Chinese flyers planning their travel to and within Australia and New Zealand, as well as on our growing domestic Vietnamese operations," JQ chief commercial officer David Koczkar said.

"With China rapidly becoming one of Australia and New Zealand's most important source markets for international visitors, this has the potential to be a major benefit for the trans-Tasman tourism sector," he said.

Cathay Pacific and Dragonair become JQ's 16th and 17th interline partners.

Pearl christened

P&O CRUISES christened its newest ship the Pacific Pearl last night in Auckland, with the ships maiden voyage departing today carrying 1,700 pax on an eight night New Caledonian cruise.

ESCAPING Christmas.

A recent survey has found that around 23% of all Australians plan a holiday in the Christmas break to avoid their relatives on Christmas Day.

The lastminute.com survey also named the top 'hideouts' as Noosa, Perth, Bali and New York.

"One cheeky respondent was so desperate to escape the in-laws, she sneakily stayed in a motel in the next street one Christmas without telling anyone," said lastminute's Courtney Maywald.

DID you take to wearing blue, or spruiking new found environmental beliefs after watching Avatar?

If the answer's yes (and be honest), then the new exhibition at the Experience Music Project | Science Fiction Museum may be just the excuse to take time off and book a holiday to Seattle.

Intensively titled Avatar: The Exhibition, the project is a joint work between the Museum, Twentieth Century Fox, and James Cameron's Lightstorm Entertainment, and features props, costumes, interactive displays, concept models and sketches from the film.

O!! Santa! give me back my cash.

Cruise holidaymakers enjoying a spot of Sunday lunch on land at the East Providence Yacht Club, Rhode Island, were shocked when Santa drew a piece and demanded cash.

Resplendent in his full red suite, complete with white beard, red hat and present sack, Santa waltzed into the Yacht Club, smiled, withdrew a gun and proceeded to ransack the till.

He then disappeared out the door to the jingling of bells.

ROAD TEST
Walt Disney World
Resort, Orlando

Travel Daily is this week road testing Walt Disney World Resort in Orlando, Florida.

EPCOT is one of the biggest theme parks in Walt Disney World, Florida, and was developed in accordance with a Walt Disney vision to create an Experimental Prototype Community of the Future.

The Future World section of Epcot is home to some of Disney's most popular rides, including Soarin' which simulates a hang-glider ride over California.

Soarin' is part of an environmentally-themed area called The Land, which also features a ride offering a peek at some experimental agriculture.

Vegetables and fruit are grown using special low-water techniques to improve yields and reduce the environmental impact, with some of the produce actually utilised in the resort's many restaurants.

Another great ride in EPCOT is Test Track which takes riders through some of the tests that cars typically go through before being declared safe.

The ride is good fun and excellent for those who aren't big fans of intense rollercoasters.

EPCOT also includes a World Showcase, highlighting 11 different countries in special displays aiming to increase cultural understanding.

The World Showcase area is home to restaurants featuring a huge variety of cuisines such as French, Italian, Moroccan, British and Japanese, to name just a few.

The World Showcase area also features a spectacular light show every night from 9.30pm.
