Travel Daily on location in Cairo, Egypt

Today's issue of Travel Daily is coming to you from Cairo, courtesy of Insight Vacations.

EGYPT is a timeless destination, and there is truly no better time than right now to experience it.

Just ten months after the 'Arab Spring' revolution, Cairo is a bustling metropolis, optimistic about the future and very eager to welcome visitors, with tourists slowly starting to return but a notable lack of crowds.

Currently in the midst of elections, the country's tourism operations are in full swing and visitors now feel they are part of both ancient and modern history.

Today TD visited the Pyramids of Giza, with the massive monuments a stark reminder of the huge contribution that Egypt has made to global civilisation.

Egypt is a must-see, and although TD's visit is only short we'll definitely be back!

Tell your clients to visit Egypt now, before the crowds return. See insightvacations.com.

Domestic travel picking up

ABOUT 4% more Australians travelled domestically for the year ended Sep than in 2010, according to Tourism Research Australia data released this morning.

The latest National Visitor Survey indicated there was 69.6m overnight trips, their highest level since 2008, while spending was on par with 2010, at $262 million.

New South Wales scored the lion's share of domestic visitors and overnight stays, at 34% and 31% respectively.

Queensland and Victoria shared equal billing for domestic visits on 24% each, however 7% more people spent nights in Qld, while NT & ACT visits fell 12% and 13%.

Federal Tourism Minister Martin Ferguson said the survey showed Qld's domestic tourism continues to rebound from this year's natural disasters, mainly through intrastate business travel and family/friend visits, "rather than interstate holiday travel.

SIA/DJ industry praise

SILKAIR and Virgin Australia have been commended by the territory government & Tourism Australia for their decision to launch new services to Darwin.

The Singapore Airlines offshoot is launching a four times weekly service to Darwin in late May, and Virgin Australia will begin direct Sydney-Darwin flights from early Apr (TD yest.) using 737-800s.

"SilkAir's decision to set up operations in Darwin shows great confidence in the Territory's future," NT chief minister Paul Henderson said, and that they were "great news for Territorians, business and tourism."

NT Tourism Minister Malarndirri McCarthy said lobbying by her govt and Darwin Airport had paid off, with the territory to now begin working with both carriers on cooperative marketing promos.

Tourism Australia md Andrew McEvoy applauded the alliance partners for "getting the runs on the board so quickly" under their integrated network.

McEvoy said regional tourism operators in Darwin and more broadly in the NT will warmly welcome the extra services.

Ethiopian joins Star

STAR Alliance has added a third African carrier to its global airline network, with Addis Ababa-based Ethiopian Airlines joining the group officially yesterday.

Jaan Albrecht, Star Alliance ceo said having Ethiopian Airlines on its team meant the alliance had "taken a large step forward in completing our Africa strategy."

As Star's 28th member, it gives the group coverage in Africa's key East, Central & West Africa hubs.

The airline will add three new countries to Star Alliances' global network - Central African Republic, Chad and Djibouti - and 23 African destinations, 16 of which are in Ethiopia.

ET services will be blended into various Star Alliance fare products from 01 Jan, and offered on the Africa Airpass.

Somersby-based Lisella have been developing a process to produce a biofuel that uses water technology to make bio-crude oil from biomass, such as farm and agricultural waste, called Catalytic Hydrothermal Reactor.

Virgin Australia and Licella will "jointly explore the potential of CAT-HTR through further testing of the aviation fuel the technology produces", the carrier said.

The MoU enables DJ to further support the biofuels development.

AFTA UPDATE

The latest insights from AFTA's Chief Executive, Jayson Westbury

LAST week the Consumer Affairs ministers held their second meeting for the year which included a discussion on the progress of the Consumer Protection Review of the travel industry. Those that have been following this would know that this grouping was referred to as the Ministerial Council of Consumer Affairs Ministers (MCCA).

However, it is now to be referred to as the Consumer Affairs Ministers Forum (CAF). At this CAF meeting held last Friday (09 Dec) the review was considered along with a wide range of other important consumer affairs issues being addressed across the states.

At the previous meeting earlier this year, it was decided that a Travel Industry Transition Plan (TITP) be developed and I am pleased to say that AFTA has been working with the TITP in considering a wide range of options for how the industry could be regulated into the future.

While the micro detail of the plans are yet to be agreed and or released, indications are that the Ministers are working towards reform of the regulatory arrangements of the travel industry.

As a result of this AFTA has once again commissioned KPMG to assist in the development of a Scoping Paper to explore the various aspects of the current regulations that could be changed with a hope to move to a new system and other options that are being considered by TITP.

This is all consistent with the outcomes of the review papers that were released earlier this year and the paper released by the Consumer Affairs Officials also released earlier this year. I am sure that many of you that have kept up to date on this progress would take a deep breath and a sigh at this point as this does appear to be taking a very long time to get an outcome.

It is important to note that any new regulation will require a significant number of state based laws to be changed and for a common approach to be agreed a great deal of consideration and time is needed to outline the reforms both at a bureaucracy and ministerial level. No easy thing.

But, I feel more encouraged of late that reform is on the near horizon and 2012 will bring clearer and more complete detail as to the way the travel industry will be regulated into the future. I also expect that announcements on the appointment of a new Chairman of the TCF will be made later this week or early next week as the current term for many of the trustee's and chairman have come to an end.

Keep your eye out for this news.

Are Disney Parks open on Christmas day?

Q&A Corner

Absolutely! Our Disney Parks are open 365 days a year, infact Christmas is one of our busiest times of year. The timespan between Christmas and New Year sees some of the largest attendances at both Disneyland and Walt Disney World. Christmas is certainly one of the most special times to visit a Disney Park. Read about some of the special events and happenings above.

A helpful hint for guests: Book your dining options well in advance to avoid disappointment. And don't forget that some special Christmas festivities require a seperate admission ticket. Visit www.disneytravelagents.com.au for more information.
