Check out this chick?!

WE have started receiving more entries in our Tiffany's Show competition, with the latest effort from a gutsy Clinton Griffiths of Flight Centre North Sydney.

Clinton (pictured) has frocked up to perform his very special interpretation of Beyonce's Single Ladies - to view the stunning performance and the other entries just click on the pic or see traveldaily.com.au/videos.

The closing date for entries in the competition has been extended to 9am next Mon 04 Jul with a prize of a trip to Thailand courtesy of THAI Airways International, the Tourism Authority of Thailand, Siam Resorts and Tiffany's Show - see traveldaily.com.au/competitions.

MEANWHILE today we are launching yet another amazing competition, offering a major prize of a trip for two to Canada courtesy of Rocky Mountaineer - for details see page six.

Costa, CCS part company

CARNIVAL Australia's Complete Cruise Solution will no longer distribute Costa Cruises product from the end of this month.

Costa has confirmed the move, telling TD the move is part of increasing its worldwide presence in the lead-up to the visits of its Deliziosa to Sydney, Melbourne and Perth next Feb.

"From August 1, Costa Cruises' Asia-Pacific operations team will directly manage sales enquiries and related support activities," said Costa's Hong Kong-based regional vp, Dario Rustico.

He said that CCS would continue to support agents in selling Costa until the end of the month to ensure a smooth transition.

Carnival Australia spokesperson Sandy Olsen said the move followed ongoing senior level discussions about the brands.

"Costa's growth around the world has created an opportunity to revisit the business model," Olsen said.

MEANWHILE Brett Dudley of Cruiseagents.travel, which also represents Costa here, said he planned to ramp up the company's relationship with Costa.

"We want to give independent agents an opportunity to book Costa cruises more efficiently," he said, with the cruiseagents.travel website offering live pricing.

CWT ADL closure

CARLSON Wagonlit Travel has closed its branch agency in Leigh Street Adelaide, according to TCF records released today.

Other voluntary TCF terminations include a number of travel agents retiring or closing at the end of the financial year, including Autohome Rentals International from Westleigh NSW; Four Seasons Travel in Erskine, WA; Walkerville Travelworld in Kensington Park SA; and Ulverstone Travel from Ulverstone Tas.

QF consolidations

QANTAS will respond to next Mon's engineers strike action by utilising larger 767 aircraft on some Melbourne routes.

The carrier said the measures would ensure the vast majority of passengers remain on scheduled services, while others will be able to move onto flights within 15 min of their original departure.

Next week is expected to be very busy, with the start of school holidays in most states - not to mention the State of Origin in Brisbane on Wed, the same day that the union has announced stoppages in the Qld capital.

MEANWHILE Qantas and Jetstar have both announced the resumption of trans-Tasman flights from noon today, while QF17/18 Buenos Aires services are delayed until tomorrow due to ongoing ash cloud impacts.

$500m TTV for CTM

LISTED TMC Corporate Travel Management this morning confirmed it had achieved a "milestone" of $500m in total transaction value for the 2010/11 financial year.

MD Jamie Pherous said the figure had exceeded forecasts, and had been delivered "via strong organic growth through new client wins and retention of existing clients.

"Achieving this milestone cements us as a key player in Australia and New Zealand," he said, with the figure particularly pleasing given that it's been achieved during difficult times for the economy.

CTM will release its current year profit forecast at its inaugural Annual General Meeting which will take place on 25 Aug.

Blue Lagoon boss goes

BLUE Lagoon Cruises today announced a "major restructuring" of its operations, following the departure of its former gm Tim Stonhill.

BLC will undertake a three month soft refurbishment of its MV Mystique Princess, meaning that sailings from 01 Oct will be operated by MV Fiji Princess, which is currently up for sale.

Once the Mystique upgrade is complete Blue Lagoon will announce a new departure schedule, with Fiji Princess operating 2 night trips until sold.

Jetstar, JAL joint venture

JETSTAR is set to spread its wings in Japan, with a new offshoot set to be established in partnership with Japan Airlines.

The fledgling carrier will operate low-cost domestic routes within Japan from next year, according to overnight Nikkei reports.

A number of major Japanese companies - including Toyota and Mitsubishi - have also been invited to invest in the business, with Jetstar and JAL expected to each hold a 30% stake.

Jetstar has for some time been looking at the Japanese market, previously downplaying reports of a domestic joint venture with Chinese carrier Spring Airlines (TD 09 Mar), but confirmed it was "exploring opportunities across Asia" as part of its strategy.

The report from Tokyo says the new operation will start up with capital of $150m-$200m and may operate flights from Narita, Nagoya and Kansai.

The Jetstar-JAL deal is set to be finalised next month - although a Qantas spokesperson told TD this morning that while the carrier is looking at a range of opportunities across Asia "no agreements have been reached with any parties".

When JAL declared bankruptcy 18 months ago Qantas, along with other oneworld carriers, offered to provide expertise to help the airline restructure.

The new venture won't be the only low-cost carrier operating in the Japanese domestic market, with rival Star Alliance member All Nippon Airways set to debut its new Peach LCC (TD 26 May) in Mar 2012 operating a fleet of 10 A320s from Kansai Airport.

Lamont reappointed

KATE Lamont was this morning confirmed with a further 12 month term as chairman of the board of Tourism Western Australia.

WA Tourism Minister Kim Hames announced the move, saying Lamont had agreed to a year-long extension of the role she has held for the last 5 years as Tourism WA implements new strategies.

Globus pax avoid tax

THE Globus family of brands this morning announced that it will absorb the cost of the new tourism tax announced by officials in Florence (TD 25 May).

The new impost applies from today and ranges between €1 and €5 per person per night depending on hotel ratings.

Globus is also absorbing a similar tax which was introduced in Rome on 01 Jan this year.

Wellington gets tasty

TONIGHT'S episode of channel 10's Masterchef will feature some of NZ's culinary offerings, incl Wellington which will next month host the third annual Wellington on a Plate food festival which will take place 05-21 Aug.

Wellington cuisine will also be showcased in Nov with a special Pop Up Restaurant in Melbourne.

Star Jeans for Genes

THE Star Alliance is offering Australian agents the chance to win up to $1000 and help fund research into childhood diseases when they sell fares on its member carriers in Jul and Aug.

The 'Jeans for Genes' agent incentive is available on 15 Star Alliance fare products, including Round the World tickets, Circle fares and regional passes.

A donation of $100 will be given to the 'Jeans for Genes' campaign to help children's medical research for every booking made during the two months.

At the end of the promotion $50 will be given to agencies for every booking made.

To register for the promotion visit the Travel Agents Only section at thairways.com.au.

Qantas offloads Harvey's Choice

HARVEY'S Choice Holidays has become a fully owned subsidiary of Jetset Travelworld Limited, after the company acquired the remaining 50% of the operation from Qantas (TD breaking news).

JTG says the move further strengthens its position in the wholesale package travel market.

Harvey Holidays Pty Ltd was established in 2000 as a joint venture between Harvey World Travel - now a subsidiary of JTG since the Stella merger last year - and Qantas Airways.

It's an exclusive in-house wholesale operation for the HWT retail network, and under the agreement Qantas Holidays provides land product contracting and management services as well as the supply of the Calypso wholesale reservations system.

Terms of the deal, announced yesterday afternoon, have not been disclosed but JTG said it won't have a material impact on its financial performance.

CEO Peter Lacaze said Harvey's Choice would continue as a standalone business focused wholly on supplying international wholesale product for the Harvey World Travel retail network.

"Full ownership of this successful business will further strengthen the overall JTG wholesale portfolio," he added.

Cooper Beer combo

The Game 3 questions are:

1. What do you predict the score will be for Game 3 being played next Wednesday?
2. How many tries in total (both teams combined) do you think will be scored in Game 3?
3. Which player do you think will be awarded Man of the Match following Game 3?

Answers are due by 6.30pm AEST on Wednesday 06 Jul to socomp@traveldaily.com.au.

The winner will be announced in Travel Daily on Fri 08 Jul.

THERE'S no doubting the footy tipping skills of TD readers.

The winner of last week's NRL tipping competition, Narelle Hogan from Educational World Travel in NSW, was the only one of more than 700 tippers to get a perfect round.

But Narelle has confessed her secret - the tips were actually done by her six year old granddaughter.

Unfortunately the clever child won't be able to enjoy the fruits of her labour, because Narelle won two bottles of wine courtesy of Compass Car Rental.

But we're sure her generous grandma will more than make up for it.

QANTAS looks set to make Formula One racing driver Mark Webber go even faster.

Webber, who became a QF Ambassador earlier this year, apparently has ambitions to become a pilot, and the carrier has agreed to lend a hand.

And he's not starting small, spending some time yesterday in the cockpit of a Qantas A380 at London Heathrow Airport with a QF training captain.

Qantas ceo Alan Joyce said the airline would provide mentoring support and time in the carrier's flight simulators.

AIR traffic at one of the world's busiest airports ground to a halt yesterday because of turtles.

The incident at New York JFK saw around 150 diamondback terrapins traipse across one of the tarmac to get to the sandy shores of Jamaica Bay Wildlife Refuge, which borders the iconic airport precinct.

The turtles migrate annually to the refuge, to lay their eggs.

Air traffic was only stopped for around 15 minutes, with airport staffers swooping on the runway to pick up the turtles and deliver them to their destination.

Tourism Qld launches Project China

TOURISM Queensland will work with industry partners to develop a new three year strategy for the Chinese inbound tourism market.

'Project China' is a long-term initiative involving the likes of Tourism Australia, ATEC, Regional Tourism Organisations and DFAT.

It aims to "ensure the China market grows in a positive, sustainable way" and that the state is ready for growth by providing high quality tourism experiences, a key element of Tourism Australia's China 2020 Strategic Plan (TD 08 Jun).

Opportunities for Qld-based tourism operators to be involved are available "to improve their understanding" of the market, TQ says in a two page memo outlining details of the project. Topics addressed include expectations & delivery of quality products, skills and language development, food and cultural knowledge, quality tour guide availability and more.

"It is imperative that the Queensland tourism industry prepares in advance for the increasing number of Chinese visitors.

"Project China will work on identifying a number of key areas for Queensland operators to focus on in order to achieve China readiness," the memo explains.

Other aspects of the initiative cover investment, marketing & target audiences (with airline and wholesaler partners) and "fine-tuning" Qld's aviation strategy.

Consultation meetings will be held through the project, with meetings to kick off this month.

DL OK for HND delay

DELTA Air Lines has been given a green light for a near 12 month dormancy waiver on flights between Detroit and Tokyo Haneda by the US government.

The SkyTeam carrier operated the service for around a month before the 13 Mar earthquake and tsunami struck Japan.

The US Dept of Transportation said "in light of extraordinary circumstances" it would allow Delta to delay the route until no later than 01 Jun 2012.

Any further delays would be "critically evaluated" the DOT said.

As a result of the ruling, rival American Airlines has told the DOT it too wishes to suspend its Haneda route from New York JFK until the same date, adding it is expecting "equivalent relief".

Qantas wants FJ sale

QANTAS has proposed a range of options to Air Pacific which would allow the Fijian flag carrier to finance the purchase of QF's 46.3% stake in the airline.

According to Dow Jones Newswires, QF has suggested that the Fijian government could cancel new aircraft orders, sell and lease back aircraft and sell the Sofitel Hotel on Denarau Island to buy the shareholding.
