MK $50 voucher offer

AIR Mauritius is offering agents ordering a return flight ex Sydney to any of its global destinations through Quikfares, a $50 David Jones shopping voucher, from now until 16 Nov 2011.

More details on the last page.

V Australia plots Hawaii

HAWAIIAN Airlines has submitted an application with the US Department of Transportation which would allow Virgin Australia's long-haul offshoot V Australia to place its code on HA flights from Australia to Honolulu.

It also covers Hawaiian's inter-island flights, with HA requesting "expedited consideration" to facilitate the marketing and advance sale of the flights.

Although initially covering services from Australia to Hawaii, the carriers are also asking for a blanket ruling to give them the flexibility to quickly expand this relationship to more points - including destinations in the continental US and other countries - in the future.

If approved the deal will be Virgin Australia's fifth major codeshare partnership, adding to existing deals with Air NZ, Etihad, Delta Air Lines and the pending tie-up with Singapore Airlines.

HA said the codeshare services (flagged earlier this year by ceo John Borghetti), will be initiated as soon as DoT approval is received, adding approval of the application is consistent with the Australia-US air services agreement.

EK US expansion

EMIRATES has overnight announced its two newest US ports, with the launch of daily flights from Dubai to both Dallas Fort Worth and Seattle.

DFW will debut using 777-200LR aircraft on 02 Feb 2012, while Seattle will follow a month later, with 777-300ERs operating 7 times a week from 01 Mar 2012.

EK President Tim Clark said the new services "emphasise Emirates' confidence in, and long-term commitment to, the United States."

The move will see EK operating to six US ports, including LAX, Houston, JFK and San Francisco.

"Our latest expansion also serves as a powerful indicator of how Emirates continues to invest in products and services even during difficult economic climates," Clark added.

Reservations are now open for both new services.

ACCC approves AA/QF pact

THE Australian Competition and Consumer Commission has today confirmed its previous draft determination, giving the full OK for the Joint Business Agreement between American Airlines and Qantas (TD breaking news).

The approval has come earlier than expected, with the ACCC previously indicating it expected to announce a final decision in Oct or Nov this year.

The pact has been approved until 21 Oct 2016, allowing QF and AA to coordinate all business operations including flights, pricing and revenue management, scheduling, cargo, passenger sales and marketing, airport services and frequent flyer programs.

"The ACCC considers that the JBA is likely to result in new and improved products and services," said chairman Rod Sims, adding that it's likely to give an incentive to offer "new fare products which may result in lower fares on many trans-Pacific routes."

Qantas didn't issue a formal statement following the ACCC announcement, but a spokesperson told TD the approval "will enable us to deepen our commercial relationship and result in significant benefits for consumers".

ETIHAD Airlines will have two aircraft with onboard internet by the end of this year, according to ceo James Hogan, with another three configured by Mar 2012.

Speaking at the World Broadband Forum in Paris, Hogan said some of the planes would be A330-300s operating between Abu Dhabi and European cities such as London, Paris, Geneva, Frankfurt and Munich.

"And we are right at the point now of settling on a fleet-wide connectivity solution for the years to come," he added.

Hogan also spoke about the impact of the internet on airline businesses, with EY's online sales during Jul up 71% year on year.

He said the day was approaching when "the greater part of our selling" will be digital, particularly via smartphone and tablet devices.

Two QF singles ex LHR cheaper than a return

A UK-BASED flight comparison site has found that passengers flying to Hong Kong from London could save as much as £350 (A$550) by purchasing two single sectors rather than a return fare - even when the tickets are on exactly the same flights.

Skyscanner.net cited the example of QF LHR-HKG-LHR between 30 Nov-03 Dec, where the total return fare is £1872.

On the same flights an outward single is available for £988, while an inbound single costs £536, giving a total fare of just £1524.

The website cites similar savings on British Airways flights to Tokyo and Beijing, saving up to £430.

Skyscanner ceo Gareth Williams said the revelations show that in some cases "two tickets are better than one".

Window Seat

THE US state of Utah is hoping for a tourism spinoff from a very special anniversary this month.

It's 20 years since the Oscar-winning movie Thelma & Louise came out - and entertained viewers across the globe with its gal-pal road trip story through spectacular scenery.

Several hotels in Utah locations which were featured in the film are also celebrating the anniversary with special promotions, most particularly featuring "Girlfriend Getaways".

It's hoped these weekends away don't end in a similar way to the movie, which culminated in a shocking suicide plunge into the Grand Canyon.

TRAVELZOO conducted an intriguing experiment in social media yesterday.

One of the firm's producers, Catherine Mah, baked some fascinating (and delicious) "Brain Slug" cupcakes for the team.

Most were quickly devoured but there was one left, which Travelzoo decided to offer via Facebook to a subscriber who was in the Sydney CBD.

Despite pouring rain yesterday an intrepid Travelzoo member hiked down to Circular Quay to pick up the spoils (below).

Travelzoo marketing mgr, John Prince, told TD it was "just another way to harness social media to enhance user engagement with our brand!"
