LHR express lanes

THE UK Border Agency has begun trials of special passport control lanes for "low-risk" non-European passengers, such as those from Australia, New Zealand, USA, Canada & Japan to help reduce queue times.

The UK Telegraph reports the express lanes are being offered to nationals of countries who do not require a visa and ahead of the expected Olympic tourist influx in coming weeks.

JQ neo order under threat

QANTAS and Jetstar Airways have informed the competition regulator that Jetstar's order of Airbus A320neos could be threatened if it does not approve a proposed Joint Venture Coordination Agreement (JVCA).

Last Aug, the Qantas Group signed a massive aircraft order with Airbus for 110 A320s, including 78 A320neos (TD 16 Aug 2011) - most of which are earmarked for Jetstar to enable its expansion in Asia.

But according to the joint Qantas/Jetstar submission to the ACCC - exclusively revealed by Travel Daily yesterday - the green light for the JVCA is pivotal for the A320neo order.

Without the JVCA for the Jetstar

Pan-Asia Strategy, the group "would not continue to establish or support Jetstar LCCs in Asia," and could impact on profitability, "its capacity to grow quickly & invest as much as it otherwise would do."

"It may also have adverse implications for the viability of the significant fleet order placed with Airbus in 2011, the engine order with CFM International in April 2012, and Jetstar Airways' ability to afford new technologies, including the A320neo," the joint submission warned.

The new cabins have gone on sale from today.

Pacific Pearl will go into drydock on 06 Aug for 15 days.

SkyTeam passes enhanced

THE SkyTeam airline alliance has announced changes to its Asian Fare passes as its member numbers continue to grow, with Australia added to its 'Go Asia Pass' for the first time.

Effective immediately, the pass has been renamed as the 'Go Asia & South West Pacific Pass' and its scope expanded to also include New Zealand & other destinations in the region.

"With SkyTeam's rapidly evolving presence in this area and increasing capacity to Australia, this is an excellent way for our customers to explore the whole region," said SkyTeam country director Australia, Rafael Despradel.

The 'Go Asia & South West Pacific Pass' must be sold in conjunction with a SkyTeam carrier's flights originating in IATA Areas 1 & 2 (Americas, Africa, Europe, Middle East etc), in order to be eligible.

China Airlines has also been added to the 'Go China Pass', which has now been rebranded as the Go Greater China Pass.

Reinvention of Aussie tourism

A CALL to arms has been made to the Australian Tourism industry, urging for development and rejuvenation to gather pace if it is to claw back some of the lost domestic tourist market.

The summons was issued by industry veteran Tony Charters, who along with the Victoria Tourism Industry Council, will convene a national tourism summit on 16 & 17 Jul, at the Melbourne Cricket Ground.

The Tourism and Events Excellence conference is aimed at encouraging a reinvention of the Australian domestic market.

"Almost one in two Australians intends [on] taking an overseas holiday in the next 12 months, and our tourism industry risks being becalmed if international visitors don't fill that void," Charter said.

The conference will be attended by industry leaders and government policy-makers.

Barangaroo 'floating hotel' plan scuttled

THE development of a 'floating hotel' at Darling Harbour as part of the $230m Barangaroo waterfront precinct in Sydney (TD 11 Nov 2010) appears to have hit a snag, with the NSW Govt reportedly insisting the property be moved onto land.

The original Lend Lease design for Barangaroo included plans for an iconic hotel to be built atop a new pier that would jut out into Sydney Harbour.

A number of int'l hotel groups were rumoured to have shown interest in the Sydney project, including MGM, Mandarin Oriental, Ritz-Carlton, Jumeirah and most recently, Crown.

Carbon tax to affect hotel rates

HOTEL prices are set to rise to pass on the effects of the gov't's new carbon tax, according to results tabled from an internal Tourism Accommodation Australia (TAA) survey.

Uncertainty among the hotel industry on how much the levy will impact their operations, despite the efforts of many to reduce their carbon footprint, was a key driver behind the negative outcomes, according to TAA md Rodger Powell.

"The majority of hotel operators are waiting to see the net effect of the tax on their input costs before finalising new pricing," Powell said.

While some hotel operators had already increased their rates, many were acting cautiously on the matter and being mindful of threats of price-gouging penalties from the ACCC.

The survey showed the carbon tax, in addition to recent increases to the Passenger Movement Charge were a concern not only to the bottom line of hotels from an operational standpoint, but to overall hotel competitiveness.

"It is critical that Government get the settings right to ensure our industry can compete with other destinations that are not facing a carbon tax," he added.

Whitsundays all set to shine

WHITSUNDAYS Business Events finished up its roadshow in Sydney this past week with a large gathering of operators, personal conference organisers, event planners and media.

Hayman representative Bridget Griffiths said the private island has had a "really strong peak season," and expects the same during the school holiday periods.

These numbers follow a five-month forced closure of the resort for refurbishment and repairs following damage caused by Tropical Cyclones Anthony & Yasi last year.

Mark Windsor, Tui Marine head of distribution Australia & Asia/Pacific announced the introduction of two new routes as well as flotillas by Sunsail within the next year.

"It's new product for the Whitsundays and a great team building exercise for clients", Windsor said.

Meanwhile, Cruise Whitsundays says it is "excited" about its 17 Jul start date for servicing the Whitsundays.

"We have never had access to Hamilton Island before", Marine Tourism Holdings bdm, Kevin Ross told Travel Daily.

The purchase of Fantasea Adventure Cruising will provide Cruise Whitsundays with "great access to the islands" and easier access for locals and tourists "to get from A to B".

AFTA UPDATE

The latest insights from AFTA's Chief Executive, Jayson Westbury

LAST week I made mention of the Consumer Affairs Ministers meeting that was to be held in Adelaide on Friday 6th July. At that meeting the Ministers considered a range of options for how travel agents should be regulated and consumer protection could be best provided into the future.

From what I can see from the communique issued by the Ministers post the meeting, I am pleased that there are clear signals that states will be working to a transition of reform. What the Ministers have said clearly is that the process has demonstrated without question that the current arrangements including the TCF are no longer appropriate nor the best fit for a modern and indeed global travel distribution market in Australia.

This is consistent with the position AFTA took at the start of this very long review process and I have to say, I am really pleased that we have this outcome. While the Ministers indicated that a draft transition plan has been received, I am particularly encouraged that they have also said that the final plan will be signed off at the December 2012 meeting. This means that whatever the final and specific arrangements are for the future, they will be agreed at the December 2012 meeting. Given that timeline, I am firmly of the view that new arrangements will be implemented in 2013.

The Ministers in their release "acknowledged the Travel Compensation Fund (TCF) had played an important role in protecting consumers in the past. However, Ministers agreed that the TCF could not continue to be the primary vehicle for consumer protection in the travel market".

This sentence in the release is a clear sign that the draft transition plan will see fundamental changes to the arrangements going forward and from all of the feedback I have received over the past 3 ½ years and consistent with all of the reports, this will no doubt be good news for travel agency owners going forward.

So all of this means that we now move to the business end of this review process. Over the coming 6 months there will be considerable work to be done to ensure that the draft transition plan is manageable and fit for purpose arrangements for our modern, global and borderless travel distribution industry that AFTA so forthrightly represents. As I have said many times before, stay tuned, but this time at least we know there is an end in sight.

Gold Airways demise

PLANS by a former Ansett Airways staffer to establish a new domestic carrier called Gold Airways have fizzled.

Gold Airways had planned an IPO in Q3 2011 (TD 30 Aug 2011), and has raised its concerns previously about the JV between Virgin Australia and Singapore Airlines.

The proposed airline's website states shareholders resolved last month to deregister the airline trading as RMA Gold Airways Limited.

"This has provided [the] opportunity to commence a new charter airline venture based in Australia," according to goldairways.com.au.
