Tok Tok 2013 postponed

"SCHEDULED maintenance" on Air Vanuatu's Boeing 737-800 (TD Tue) has forced the shock deferral of this year's Tok Tok Vanuatu trade show - just over a week before it was scheduled to occur.

Tok Tok was planned for 27-30 Aug, but all attendees are being contacted today to advise of the surprise postponement.

Air Vanuatu is continuing to operate its normal schedule with a smaller chartered aircraft "but due to its limited capacity will not be able to meet the demand of Tok Tok," according to the Vanuatu Tourist Office.

As exclusively revealed by TD earlier this week, the normal Air Vanuatu aircraft is unavailable from today until 09 Sep.

"Air Vanuatu regrets that this decision will cause disruption to the travel plans of many of our industry partners, but we look forward to welcoming you on board our aircraft when the event takes place later in the year," said Air Vanuatu manager Floyd Smith.

Just last week, the event was formally launched with a 'sponsor & partners' press conference at the Holiday Inn Resort, Vanuatu.

Tok Tok 2014 is now scheduled to take place from 12-15 Nov.

The warning comes in the wake of nationwide clashes which left over 200 people dead, a state of emergency declared and a 7pm-6am curfew imposed in locations including Cairo and Alexandria.

OOL defends beaches

SOUTHERN Gold Coast chief Peter Doggett has defended the region's beaches ahead of an expected swell in visitor numbers over spring and summer months.

While some of the Gold Coast's most popular beaches - including Surfers Paradise, Burleigh Heads and Coolangatta - have suffered some of the worst erosion in decades due to wild weather, big swells and monster king tides, regions further to the south, such as Kirra, Rainbow Bay and Greenmount have emerged relatively unscathed, the group said today.

"All our Southern Gold Coast beaches are in great shape" and beaches remain as pristine and plentiful as they have for years, Doggett commented.

"Rather than focus on the negatives, we need to get the message out to prospective visitors not to be discouraged by recent reports about our beaches...there is plenty of room on Southern Gold Coast beaches for everyone," he said.

VB talks up Falcon Route

AIRLINE partnerships with Gulf carriers underpins ongoing tourism growth opportunities from the Australian market for Britain, according to the United Kingdom's tourism agency.

Speaking in Sydney yesterday, Sumathi Ramanathan, VisitBritain regional manager Asia Pacific & Middle East acknowledged that while the traditional 'Kangaroo Route' is performing "really well," the emergence of the 'Falcon Route' had altered the landscape of connectivity in & to the UK.

"We are now seeing the best connectivity across regional Australia to key regional cities into the UK, and that is vital for us to grow the market," she said.

Whereas in the recent past, the focus has been on flights out of Sydney, Gulf carriers are opening up air links from Melbourne, Adelaide, Perth and Brisbane to a number of destinations within the UK, Ramanathan said.

The Dubai-based VB executive said the country is being aided by the connectivity of carriers operating on the Falcon Route due to airfare competition.

"Competition is going to be quite helpful in terms of getting people to the UK," she said.

The so-called 'Falcon Route' is operated by Middle Eastern carriers - Emirates, Etihad Airways and Qatar Airways.

In May, VisitBritain inked a new £2 million joint marketing pact with Emirates and is in the process of negotiating a deal with Etihad, Ramanathan told TD.

"We are hopeful that with our partnership tying in with Emirates and Etihad we'll really be able to showcase more regional parts of Great Britain," she said.

VisitBritain's alliance with EK has been elevated from smaller country specific partnerships to a "global arrangement that is more strategic and long-term."

The British tourism authority has also signed a US$200,000 deal with Qatar Airways, targeted at the Saudi market.

Ramanathan also emphasised that British Airways and Virgin Atlantic have, and will remain, founding airline partners linking the UK to Australia.

Souris Lux opening

NSW Minister for Tourism & Major Events George Souris will open next month's luxury travel show Luxperience, event organisers have confirmed.

Luxperience ceo Helen Logas said the show was privileged to have Souris address delegates of the Thought Leaders event at Sydney Town Hall on 01 Sep, acknowledging that "the Minister recognises the importance of experiential travel, innovation in tourism and iconic events."

The three-day business program is being held at Sydney's Overseas Passenger Terminal on 02-04 Sep.

QFFFF boosts redemption options

QANTAS has revamped the booking process on its website to make it easier for members of its frequent flyer program to redeem award flights.

According to an update sent to Qantas Frequent Flyer program members yesterday, the update gives "greater visibility of Qantas and Partner Classic Awards when flying within Australia," with the points options now appearing alongside cash fares in search results on the site.

The system also now allows travellers to combine 'Classic Awards' and 'Any Seat Awards' as well as cash fares within the same booking for domestic flights.

It's now possible to book domestic Classic Awards up to two hours prior to departure, or up to four hours before departure on international routes when booking on qantas.com.

For international travel, search screens have been enhanced with the addition of a 'Show Classic Awards' tick-box, giving more options for bookings with multiple destinations as well as with partner airlines.

Further, Classic Awards can also now be booked via smartphones via the Qantas apps which are available for both iOS and Android devices.

Air Niugini growth

PAPUA New Guinea flag carrier Air Niugini has flagged the introduction of new flights to Auckland, NZ and Nadi, Fjii.

Chairman Garth McIlwain made the announcement following the airline's inaugural Port Moresby-Bali flight on Mon.

Cathay turnaround

CATHAY Pacific Airways yesterday reported a HK$24 million profit for the six months to 30 Jun, compared to a massive HK$929m loss for the previous corresponding period.

CX said it was continuing to operate in a "challenging business environment," with improvements in passenger demand but weak cargo markets.

"The persistently high price of jet fuel continues to have an adverse effect on business," the airline said, with a range of measures undertaken including reducing capacity, withdrawal of less fuel-efficient aircraft and changed schedules.

Net fuel costs declined by 8.5% during the period, but still comprised 38.8% of total operating costs for the airline.

Cathay Pacific said the introduction of its new Premium Economy Class last year had helped to improve Economy Class yield, while a program to improve First class on 777-300ER aircraft commenced last month.

Chairman Christopher Pratt said CX would "continue to invest to make our business stronger".

Window Seat

HOW about this as a way to get around? Kiwi ingenuity has once again come to the fore, with the release of a new version of the P12 Jetpack by Christchurch-based Martin Aircraft Company.

The jetpack, pictured below, has newly positioned ducts which has "resulted in a quantum leap in performance".

Amazingly, the company has full certification for manned flight from the New Zealand Civil Aviation Authority, and is currently focusing on some engine tweaks to ready the jetpack for commercial sale.

It may be some time before tourists are using it, however, with initial customer targets including emergency services, security, defence & agriculture.

Britain family-friendly focus

VISITBRITAN has forecast Australian visitor arrivals to top 1.2 million within the next three to six years, as the country looks to take advantage of new interest in family holidays.

Over the past decade, Aussie arrivals to Britain have grown 34% and last year was just shy of the 1 million mark, regional manager Asia Pacific & Middle East, Sumathi Ramanathan said at a media event in Sydney yesterday.

Among key activities over half of Australian travellers immerse themselves in include visiting a museum, one-third tour an art gallery, over 55% explore parks and gardens, while Britain's religious sites (cathedrals and churches) also draw big crowds.

Aussies are also passionate shoppers, forking out a staggering £1.5 billion last year, becoming the 4th most valuable market.

Australia is also the second largest source of long-haul visitor numbers to the UK, trailing only the United States.

Ramanathan told TD the Royal

Birth of Prince George late last month - the newborn son of the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge - has seen a spike in interest from some overseas markets (Gulf regions & India) who are now considering the UK as a possible family destination.

The UK has competed against the US for the family market as "Britain is not as well recognised as a family destination," she said.

"The Royal pregnancy has seen a much greater focus on family friendly activities across the UK at attractions, accommodation & holiday vacations," she added.

QF tweaks international routes

QANTAS will lift frequencies on Brisbane-Los Angeles to daily as well as introduce a new direct flight between Perth and Auckland as part of a revamp of its international network which coincided with yesterday's expansion of its EK alliance onto the Tasman (TD breaking news).

QF ceo Alan Joyce said the changes, which also include a fifth weekly A380 flight between Sydney and Hong Kong, were made possible through "schedule optimisation and ongoing transformation efforts" within Qantas International.

The new seasonal Perth-Auckland flight will operate over the summer peak period using an A330, while other changes will see Qantas retime its existing Sydney-Christchurch service to complement the Emirates flight on the same route.

Emirates ceo Tim Clark welcomed the expansion of the QF/EK pact onto the Tasman, saying it means the Emirates network has now been opened up to include Queenstown and Wellington in addition to the 55 current destinations in Australia.

From 01 Oct, all Emirates flights to Auckland will be operated by one of its A380 aircraft.

The BNE-LAX route will move to daily 747 flights effective 02 Dec.

In the pink with Langham Hotels

LANGHAM Hospitality Group really turned on the hospitality last night with a lavish roadshow in the Tearoom at Sydney's Queen Victoria Building.

There were scones and strawberry jam, a table of 'take home as much as you want' gourmet chocolates, lots of French bubbly, and prizes galore for clients and trade partners.

"It's our way of thanking our customers for their business and support," said Simon Manning, vp Sales & Marketing for Langham.

He told Travel Daily that unlike most hotel companies, Australia is probably number 15 in importance, but for Langham it's the third biggest seller in the market for outbound Aussies.

"I think people like the underdog in the industry, and at the moment all the key luxury hotel companies are watching us and our expansion because our growth has been quite extraordinary.

"In eight years, we now have 19 hotels on four continents and no one has done that, that quickly," Manning added.

He said the group has added

2,100 rooms in North America with the opening of new hotels in Manhattan and Chicago, complimented by two other hotels in Boston and LA.

"With our touch of pink colour and our two principal brands, Langham and Langham Place, we like to say we're painting the world pink in an elegant and very sophisticated way."
