CCS tick for SQ/LH tie-up

THE Competition Commission of Singapore (CCS) has approved a joint venture between Singapore Airlines and Germany's Lufthansa after the airline powerhouses agreed to capacity commitments.

Approval allows the two airline groups to create an alliance which will see the expansion of their network and incorporates SIA subsidiary SilkAir, and Lufthansa subsidiaries SWISS and Austrian Airlines.

Under the alliance, SIA & LH will deepen commercial co-operation in key markets in Europe, Southeast Asia and Australia.

To gain a green light from the CCS, Singapore Airlines and LH Group vowed to maintain and subsequently increase passenger capacity on routes between Singapore and Frankfurt, as well as between Singapore and Zurich.

The Star Alliance partners have also agreed to carry a minimum number of passengers on the two routes highlighted.

"CCS is of the view that the competition concerns identified by CCS on these two routes will be addressed with these commitments, and the Proposed JV will result in net economic benefits to Singapore," it said.

The CCS's approval follows a tick from the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (TD 23 Nov).

Singapore Airlines ceo Goh Choon Phong welcomed the nod from the competition watchdog.

"The joint venture with Lufthansa Group will provide an attractive proposition to travellers, with unparalleled network connectivity between Europe and the Asia-Pacific," Phong said.

TENDERERS bidding for the provision of accommodation program management services for the Australian Government will no longer need to use a Travel Card Program (currently Diners Club) to pay for accommodation.

According to an addendum, participants will be able to use other card providers such as AMEX, Visa & Mastercard as their nominated form of payment.

AUS-ZQN ski shuttle

VIRGIN Australia and Air New Zealand will induct night flights between Queenstown & Australia for the first time next winter.

The partnership will see VA operate twice weekly services from Queenstown to Brisbane (on Fri and Sun), starting 23 Jun, complementing new Air NZ frequencies to Sydney on Sat and Sun, commencing 01 Jul, subject to regulatory approval.

Night-time domestic flights were only introduced earlier this year between Queenstown and Auckland (TD 02 May).

"As the popularity of Queenstown grows, particularly during the ski season, we are excited to be offering even more flexible scheduling options for our guests with these new night time Ski Shuttle services," Virgin Aus group exec John Thomas said.

Air NZ chief revenue officer Cam Wallace said the 'Ski Shuttle' was part of the airline's alliance with VA to offer customers new options on trans-Tasman routes.

During the 2017 ski season, the trans-Tasman allies will operate 38 return services each week between Australia & Queenstown.

CASA phone warning

THE Civil Aviation Safety Authority is using the Christmas holiday period to warn travellers about the “dangers of crushing their smart phone while flying”.

CASA said there has been a growing number of crushing incidents on planes, occurring when a smart phone fell into the seating mechanism.

“Passengers must remember to never move their seat if a phone goes missing while inflight and to always ask the aircraft cabin crew for assistance,” the airline safety watchdog said in a memo.

“If a phone is damaged, cabin crew should be alerted immediately.”

10 months of visitor growth

INBOUND short-term visitor arrivals to Australia skyrocketed 11.1% year-on-year in Oct to 709,300, led by significant jumps from the United States, Malaysia, South Korea and India.

ABS data released yesterday showed China was the leading long-haul arrivals market (in trend terms) up 8.7% on the corresponding period in 2015 to 103,600, followed by the United Kingdom at 59,700 (up 3.1%).

The highest growth market in ingAustralia’s top 10 source nations was Malaysia, rising a whopping 26.9% (to 36,100), ahead of South Korea which jumped 23.5% to 24,800, the USA & India - both spiked 19.2% to 63,100 and 22,900 respectively.

Japan arrivals grew by 16.5% to 34,500 during the month.

New Zealand was the leading overseas source market, up 4.3% to 114,700, and also topped the short-term resident departures for Oct, with 114,200, a positive bump of 6.6% on the year prior.

Overall, outbound traffic was up 4.6% to 837,600, with India and Japan the only top 10 markets to record double-digit growth, up 14.9% and 10.1% respectively.

Travel to Indonesia, China, New Zealand and the US was positive.

The highest percentage drop was recorded from the UK (-10%) and Thailand (-7.8%).

Tourism Australia md John O’Sullivan told TD the Oct ABS inbound figures reflected a 10th consecutive month of double digit, year-on-year growth, driven by the leisure market, which was “remarkable by any standards”.

Qantas to fly world’s longest 787 route

THANKS to the dozens of loyal TD readers who highlighted that Qantas’ flagged Boeing 787-9 Perth-London service will actually be the third longest flight in the world, not the longest (TD yest), despite some mainstream media sources reporting it this way.

When it launches in Mar 2018, QF’s Perth-London Heathrow route will be the first regular pax service directly linking Australia to Europe and it will be the longest Dreamliner flight in the world.

Jetstar PPP boost

JETSTAR will bolster capacity from Sydney to the Whitsunday Coast (Proserpine) by introducing new thrice weekly services from Sydney to the Queensland gateway, effective 04 Apr.

Effective today, the route will complement JQ’s existing daily service from Brisbane to Proserpine which will increase to ten weekly at peak periods, with its year-round Melbourne service to be ramped up from three to four weekly, beginning Mar, adding up to 170,000 people to the zone.

Tourism Whitsundays welcomed the move, saying the new Jetstar flights were a “massive tick of confidence” for the region.

“The additional flights will provide a significant boost for accommodation houses, tour and transport operators, restaurants and retail outlets next year,” Tourism Whitsundays ceo Craig Turner commented.

“They will also provide better connectivity for overseas visitors, who will be more likely to visit our region if there is more choice and availability of flights,” he said.

CWT cites 15% over-spend

CARLSON Wagonlit Travel (CWT) has identified corporate over-spending of up to 15% in a new white paper on managing business traveller behaviour. The group says over-spending can be reduced by better enforcement of existing corporate travel policies, and has set out steps businesses can take to change traveller behaviour. The head of the CWT's Solutions

Group Americas Katie Raddatz said travel departments spent significant time striking the best corporate deals, yet travellers often felt travel policies did not apply to them. "Effectively enforcing compliance is often one of the hardest parts of travel management, but also the area with significant missed savings," Raddatz said. CWT had developed a system called Traveler 360 to uphold compliance, with four steps involving analysis, education, engagement and competition. To access the full white paper CLICK HERE.

AFTA update

From AFTA's chief executive, Jayson Westbury

THE tragic events which occurred at Dreamworld back in Oct this year, I am sure, are still on many people's minds, but for the good of the Gold Coast and all those employed (over 1000 people), it is very pleasing to see that it reopened this week.

The domestic tourism industry is alive and well and in particular on the Gold Coast at this time of year.

For all of those would-be holiday makers heading to the Gold Coast this Christmas, I am sure that Dreamworld will be on many itineraries.

Supporting the return of Dreamworld is important for the entire Australian tourism industry.

While nothing will ever take away the gravity of the tragedy, and everyone in the travel industry has thought about the grief felt by the families involved, some good must come as an outcome of these events.

Most families around Australia will have at some stage in their life visited the Gold Coast and more than likely one or more of the theme parks there.

It is almost a rite of passage these days for an Australian to head to the GC and ride, slide, dive, duck, pat and laugh at one of the parks.

As Dreamworld returns to full operational mode it will take some time for things to return to normal, if in fact that is ever possible, but I think it is important for us to remember the many who rely so heavily on places like Dreamworld for work and we should do what we can to support the theme parks and the Gold Coast.

I actually had my own family holiday on the Gold Coast last year and as you would expect went to the theme parks without a care in the world. For me, this will continue to be the way I approach this as while this accident was dreadful and the loss of life hard to imagine, good must come and supporting Dreamworld and the other parks along with the Gold Coast is the right thing to do.

All the best to the Dreamworld team as they now commence the journey of recovery and bring back so many smiles to the faces of those who choose to visit.
