QR postpones Vegas

QATAR Airways has revised the launch date for its non-stop services between Doha and Las Vegas in the USA, which are now slated to commence on 01 Jun 2018 - almost five months later than previously scheduled.

Batik Air appoints CVFR as GSA

ANOTHER Indonesian airline is targeting the Australian market, with the appointment today of CVFR Travel Group offshoot Airline Rep Services as its Australasian representative.

The GSA role sees the CVFR portfolio expand, complementing its existing airlines which include Malindo Air and Jet Airways.

Batik Air is set to launch its first Australian routes next month, with double daily services between Perth and Denpasar.

The full service carrier is Indonesia's largest privately owned airline, with 49 aircraft in its fleet including Airbus A320s and Boeing 737-800s and -900s.

The new service will target both inbound and outbound traffic.

"Perth is the most favourite destination in Australia for Indonesians, and we are very happy that we can fly directly to Perth from Denpasar," said Batik Air ceo Achmad Luthfie.

"We are planning to fly to more destinations in Australia," he said.

The launch of the new route follows IATA IOSA certification and the recent receipt of an Air Operator Certificate from Australia's Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA).

CVFR Travel Group managing director Ram Chhabra said "we are extremely proud to be appointed the GSA for Batik Air". He said the carrier would also focus on traffic beyond Bali on its fast-growing network.

An Australian call centre for Batik Air has been established to service the needs of agents and customers in the region, with tickets currently on sale via a codeshare arrangement with partner airline Malindo Air.

AA flagship lounges

AMERICAN Airlines has opened its renovated and largest Flagship Lounge at New York JFK Airport, part of its US$200m investment in "the luxury travel experience".

The facilities are now accessible by business class pax on qualifying int'l and transcontinental flights, in addition to First Class guests who were already permitted.

First Class customers also have exclusive access to the sit-down restaurant Flagship First Dining, located within the facility.

Further, Flagship First Check-In services are being introduced at JFK terminal 8 and other airports for qualifying pax, which includes Premium Customer Service reps greeting customers who assist with check-in formalities.

Flagship Lounges are also planned for Chicago, Dallas/Fort Worth, Los Angeles, London Heathrow and Philadelphia.

AY joins PATA

FINNAIR has been announced as the Pacific Asia Travel Association's (PATA) newest aviation member, with the carrier saying the region is key to its growth strategy, serving 18 Asian ports non-stop from Helsinki.

Plenty of Sydney capacity

SYDNEY Airport, which declined the opportunity to develop the new Western Sydney Airport (TD 02 May), says it is able to meet "significant aviation growth within our existing footprint".

Speaking at the airport's annual general meeting today, outgoing ceo Kerrie Mather said SYD can expand via a "greater focus on co-location, new terminals and differentiated products".

Mather flagged developments including the addition of more gates, baggage systems and apron capacity at the international

Terminal 1, along with a proposed new Terminal 4 which will provide additional international gates adjoining the existing T2/T3 domestic terminals.

She said SYD was planning for Western Sydney Airport to open in late 2026 "and the opportunities this will create for Sydney Airport".

"It is important these plans remain flexible, and that we deliver an integrated solution for passengers, terminal connectivity and ground access, whilst improving the customer experience and optimising the capacity and operations at the airport," Mather added.

Recent technology investments include enhanced free wifi, real time flight information via social media and detailed Google Maps coverage of terminal interiors.

She also welcomed an announcement by the NSW government that it will add 200 extra weekly airport train services by the end of the year.

To be in the running to win this year's comp, submit your answers by 6:30pm AEST 31 May by email to soocomp@traveldaily.com.au.

QF/FJ up codeshare

QANTAS and Fiji Airways have expanded their codeshare agreement, with the QF code to be placed on Fiji Airways' new twice weekly services between Adelaide and Nadi which kicks off at the end of next month.

Fiji Airways will also add its code to Qantas flights between Singapore and Perth.

BA Dreamliners to Rio

BRITISH Airways will deploy Boeing 787-9 aircraft on its six weekly flights between London Heathrow and Rio de Janeiro.

The switch from Boeing 777-200ERs will become effective from 29 Oct 2017.

Norfolk Island targets Kiwis

NEW Zealanders will be tempted to travel to Norfolk Island for a short break in a new destination campaign to be launched by Norfolk Island Tourism (NIT).

Activity will commence in Jul, showcasing Norfolk's offering as a "real and authentic holiday experience", highlighting the new Norfolk Island Airlines flights from Auckland which will kick off effective Sat 17 Jun.

Norfolk Island Airlines will also next month commence flying from Brisbane to Norfolk Island.

Components of NIT's successful 'There's More to Norfolk Island,

360 Degrees of Wonder' promo used in the Australian market for the past two years will be utilised in the Kiwi-campaign.

Air New Zealand announced its withdrawal from the Auckland-Norfolk route late last year (TD 16 Dec 2016), at the time saying the route was "not commercially sustainable".

However Norfolk Island Airlines gm Glen Buffett said advance bookings for the new weekly Sat flight were "starting to build and we are confident of growing sustainability over the next 12 months".

travelBulletin is tops

TRAVELBULLETIN has been confirmed as Australia's leading travel trade print publication, with the latest figures from the Audited Media Association of Australia showing TD's sister publication has a higher audited circulation than any of its rivals.

The formal CAB (Circulation Audit Bureau) stats confirm the 11 issues of travelBulletin over the year to 31 Mar 2017 were posted to an average of 5,214 recipients, significantly ahead of Travel Talk at 4,945 which also only submitted details for four issues during the audit period.

Travel Talk's distribution was down 14% year-on-year, while travelBulletin grew 0.4%.

Travel Weekly resigned from the audit process during the period, meaning the magazine's distribution is no longer subject to independent verification.

As well as travelBulletin's strong print circulation the digital editions of the magazine were also viewed by thousands of online readers during the year.

SQ joins PreCheck

SINGAPORE Airlines is one of seven carriers that have been added to the US Transportation Security Administration's 'PreCheck' program.

SQ passengers enrolled in the scheme will now get access to expedited security lanes at more than 180 US airports, and are allowed to keep shoes on and laptops in bags during screening.

Window Seat

NEW York-based carrier JetBlue is making the most of its Big Apple heritage, this week unveiling new livery for an aircraft featuring the New York Police Department logo.

The new 'Blue Finest' livery (below) has a bright blue body with the NYPD flag on the tail.

"As New York's Hometown Airline, supporting our local public servants including the NYPD is part of our DNA," said spokesperson Joanna Geraghty.

"Our mission of inspiring humanity is brought to life each day through our crew members," she gushed.

The insignia was revealed at a special event which included a "plane pull" where local police and firefighters dragged the aircraft along the runway to raise money for charity.

BA resumes SYD

BRITISH Airways' Sydney services will resume today after weekend IT problems caused the cancellation of yesterday's flights to and from London Heathrow.

BA confirmed a delayed BA15 left LHR last night and was due in SYD this morning before its return as BA16 later today.

GDSs reject BA plan

AMADEUS and Travelport have joined Sabre in criticising plans by British Airways and Iberia to introduce a €9.50 fee on GDS bookings (TD yesterday).

In a statement, Travelport said the move would penalise consumers who booked through travel agents, and that the fee would result in less efficient working practices.

Amadeus said the charge was not in the interests of travellers.

"Amadeus strongly believes that indirect distribution remains the most cost-efficient solution for all parties on a global scale," it said.

Both GDS providers said they were working with BA/IB parent company IAG to find a solution.

JAL MEL launch fares

JAPAN Airlines has formally confirmed the launch of its new direct flight between Melbourne and Tokyo Narita from 02 Sep, as exclusively revealed in TD on Fri.

To celebrate the route, JAL has released launch fares from $699 return in Economy class.

The flight will be operated by a Boeing 787-8 Dreamliner and will feature the airline's JAL SKY SUITE.

Victoria's Tourism and Major Events Minister John Eren said the service would provide more choice for travellers and will attract more tourists to the state.

Samoa looks to FJ

SAMOAN flag carrier Polynesian Airlines is negotiating with Fiji Airways to revive its international operations, with Samoan Prime Minister Tuilaepa Sa'ilele Malielegaoi confirming the plans in an interview with local newspaper the Sunday Samoa.

It's understood the deal would include wet leasing one FJ aircraft.

Earlier this month, the Samoan government informed Virgin Australia that it would not renew its participation in the joint venture which currently operates the airline (TD 18 May).

VA/Alliance update

VIRGIN Australia has issued an updated commercial policy for some of its regional flights in Queensland which are to be operated with new partner, Alliance Airlines (TD 11 May).

The policy applies to select flights from Mackay, Mount Isa, Cloncurry and Rockhampton, allowing guest re-accommodation into economy class on the Alliance services, with a $350 per one way sector refund for those currently booked in Virgin Australia's business class.

Waiver code BW000022 can be used to make changes.

Uber overcharging?

RIDE-SHARING phenomenon Uber has been slapped with a lawsuit alleging that its new 'upfront' pricing model is actually costing travellers more.

A class action lodged in the USA claims the "transparent" system which estimates costs when making a booking is "based on an inefficient calculation of distance and time which is nearly always more than the actual ride would normally cost".

AFTA update

From AFTA's chief executive, Jayson Westbury

OVER the weekend British Airways and Iberia (part of the International Airline Group IAG) have made some bold announcements that they will be charging approx. AUD$14 (USD$10, so can change subject to exchange rates) on all fares distributed via the GDS.

This announcement follows the path that Lufthansa made some time ago with the introduction of a fee for using the GDS to access airfares.

The key issue is that travel agents depend on the GDS for sourcing airfares, and while there has been talk and debate about the concept of New Distribution Capability (NDC) as a new way of connecting to airlines, the take up and roll out of fit for purpose productivity based and appropriate technology solutions for travel agents has been slower than the push back of an aircraft that goes technical.

Basically it is all well and good for airlines to make these big announcements about changing the model of how agents access their products, but the simple fact is, they have done little to really think about this from the agent's perspective.

How on earth is an average IATA travel agent meant to be able to develop its own technology to connect to any number of airlines' NDC direct connect XML feeds, unless they are maybe an OTA, but even then the investment is enormous?

The BA announcement comes with a lovely silver lining – it has a Frequently Asked Questions section which advises "What alternative options are available to me?" i.e., what other ways can a travel agent access BA fares to avoid paying the fee?

The document lists NDC direct connect; NDC via an IT service provider/aggregator; Self-Booking tools connect to BA or IB via NDC; IAG Booking Portal (to be available shortly); or Other travel intermediaries, including GDS, that adopt NDC based connections in the future. WTF!

I am sure as most travel agents across the country and indeed the world read this FAQ, they have no idea what any of that means.

There has been little to no education or information disseminated by the airlines or IATA for that matter about what all these new fancy NDC based connections methods are, look like, cost or if they even exist.

Even the BA portal is not yet available to take a look at. How on earth are travel agents meant to make solid commercial decisions about this when the very alternatives that are laid out in my opinion are a fantasy for the average IATA travel agent, let alone the non IATA travel agent?

It is so easy to write things on a piece of paper and email them out to the global agency community and expect that what is said will just be so.

I have been a strong supporter of NDC for the past five years and one of the lone voices on the travel agency global stage about the potential that NDC brings to provide travel agents access to the same products and services that airlines offer on their websites - but not at the expense of the travel agent.

It is meant to be a partnership, which means these changes are done together with the technology providers that agents have in place. This was confirmed by a global study done by the WTAA and IATA two years ago, but it would seem some people in the airline business don't read reports when they don't give them the answers that suit them.

I'm lost for words - which may well be a first.

Rebrand for TGV

FRENCH railway operator SNCF has unveiled plans to rebrand its flagship TGV service to inOui.

The new branding will debut from 02 Jul on the Paris-Bordeaux line, ahead of a full rollout to be finalised by 2020.

Along with the rebrand, inOui will offer WiFi and better seats.

SNCF's aim is to have trains cover different markets, such as Ouigo (low-cost) and inOui offering a premium service.

ZQN park and ride

QUEENSTOWN Airport in New Zealand will open a new 150-space Park and Ride offering next month, operated by Go Bus.

An 11-seater shuttle and luggage trailer will operate half hourly from the new site, coordinated with flight times.

Travellers are asked to allow about 15 minutes for the trip from the Park and Ride carpark to the airport depending on traffic.

For more info, CLICK HERE.

Hertz into Sri Lanka

HERTZ has announced that Hertz, Dollar and Thrifty will now operate in Colombo Sri Lanka.

This follows the signing of a multi-brand partnership with local franchise partner Andrew The Car Rental Company.

All Hertz customers in Sri Lanka will receive a free SIM card.

A&K South India

ABERCROMBIE & Kent has released a small group trip titled 'Women Hand In Hand: A Hosted Journey through Southern India'.

Highlights of the 12 day itinerary include visiting temple towns & cooking with local women in a traditional village kitchen in Tamil Nadu, with departures in Mar and Oct 2018 priced from $7,435ppts.

Travolta donating 707

HOLLYWOOD superstar, pilot and Qantas aficionado John Travolta has announced he will donate his iconic Boeing 707 aircraft to Australia's Historical Aircraft Restoration Society (HARS), located in the Illawarra region south of Sydney.

The former Qantas jet was originally delivered to the carrier in 1964, and after finishing its commercial life with QF was converted to private use.

Travolta had the 707 repainted in the original Qantas livery when he became a QF ambassador.

He said the aircraft "currently requires a lot of work to be restored to a safe flying state and having seen first hand the dedication and passion of people at HARS I have no doubt this beautiful and historical aircraft will be flying again".

Explorer transforms

P&O Cruises' Pacific Explorer, formerly known as Princess Cruises' Dawn Princess, will sail from Singapore to Sydney on 09 Jun following a 12-day drydock.

Holidaymakers will see the ship's multi-million dollar transformation when she departs Sydney on 22 Jun for her first cruise to Vanuatu.

Two waterslides, each over 80 metres in length, as well as barefoot lawn bowling greens will be added, along with refurbishments to public spaces.

The ship will have 12 dining experiences including the Waterfront Restaurant.

Other features include a P&O Edge Australia Park and the Big Screen showcasing sporting events and movies.

More details in today's issue of Cruise Weekly.

Machu Picchu change

AUTHORITIES in Peru have confirmed significant changes to access to the iconic Machu Picchu site, with new four-hour morning or afternoon tickets available rather than full day passes.

From 01 Jul visitors will have to enter either between 6am and noon, or 12-5.30, and everyone must be accompanied by a guide.

The new arrangements are aimed at reducing crowding during peak periods and are part of a new master plan for the site.

The maximum size of groups visiting Machu Picchu will also be reduced from 20 to 16 visitors.

Nanuku eco expert

NANUKU Auberge Resort in Fiji has appointed marine scientist Kelly Dawn Bentley to manage its on-site environmental programs.

The Fijian national will work on initiatives such as reef conservation, coral & mangrove replanting, shore protection and turtle preservation.

Nanuku, located at Pacific Harbour, has been showcased recently on Australian TV as the location of Channel 9's reality show The Last Resort.
