SQ-MH link arms

SINGAPORE Airlines and Malaysia Airlines have been granted conditional approval to collaborate on flight scheduling, pricing, sales, and codesharing.

The Competition and Consumer Commission of Singapore (CCCS) gave its draft green light yesterday, and comes after years of planning between the two major Asian carriers.

Preserving competition in both markets was viewed as a key consideration by the CCCS in giving its preliminary tick - especially on the busy Singapore-Kuala Lumpur route.

The approval has stipulated that both airlines must exclude low-cost carriers Scoot and Firefly from the joint-venture.

QR connected in air

QATAR Airways has completed the installation of Starlink wi-fi infrastructure on 54 Boeing 777 aircraft, becoming the first airline to connect over 50 widebody jets.

Travellers can now remain connected while in flight, accessing speeds of up to 500Mbps gate-to-gate and free of charge.

QR's focus is now switching to retrofitting its Airbus A350 fleet, a process expected to last one year.

Bunnik goes private

BUNNIK Tours has started formally selling its ability to cater for private touring after establishing a dedicated department earlier in the year.

A team of specialist BDMs have been helping to soft launch the private touring service throughout 2025, with the operator now keen on accelerating its sales growth.

A spokesperson for the company told Travel Daily the private touring option is perfect for clients not wishing to do the operator's standard tours, with the service catering for a minimum of two people, depending on the destination.

While private touring presents more flexibility in itineraries, travel groups will still need to adhere to some minimum Bunnik staples, such as tours and accommodation.

During its quiet push, Sri Lanka has already proven to be especially popular with Aussie clients, with couples leading the demographic charge.

Other countries tracking well include Egypt and Japan, and while the 60-70 age range is most dominant, Bunnik is also getting rising interest from families. AB Email HERE for more details.

One fine agent hub

ACCOR'S luxury private rental brand onefinestay has overhauled its trade portal in a bid to better engage with travel advisors.

Previously, the company's agent portal was limited in scope to services like training, however the platform now offers a range of new services, including real-time pricing and product selection.

The portal also offers advanced search and filters tools to learn more about property amenities, access to commission rates, and the ability to save and share short-listed properties.

"Our new online partner portal speeds things up, as well as offering a seamless, self-sufficient process for travel advisors," CCO Sophie Howse said.

To access the portal, agents need to become a onefinestay partner, which they can do HERE.

QF expands Finnair

QANTAS and Finnair have formally expanded their codeshare partnership, covering services between Helsinki and Australia via Tokyo.

Under the extended agreement, Finnair flights will be operated by Qantas from Tokyo Haneda to Sydney, while Finnair will take over services from Japan's Haneda and Narita to Helsinki.

Sonata class doubled

NORWEGIAN Cruise Line Holdings Chief Luxury Officer Montague has confirmed two more Sonata Class ships will join the Oceania Cruises fleet in 2032 and 2035, respectively.

An option to order the duo of vessels was previously committed to by the Oceania brand with shipbuilder Fincantieri, and when they debut, will bring the Sonata class fleet to four ships.

Oceania Sonata is scheduled to join in mid 2027, followed by Oceania Arietta in 2029.

Minor adds four more

DEVELOPMENT discussions are now underway for hotels across four new brands being rolled out by Minor Hotels Group.

The four new labels, which include the Bangkok-based company's soft brands, are being introduced to help facilitate growth into new markets and cater to evolving traveller needs.

The new labels include The Wolseley Hotels, embodying British flair in line with the iconic Piccadilly restaurant.

The luxury Minor Reserve Collection is a soft brand which the company said will represent properties that are "chosen for its rarity and ability to offer something singular that guests cannot find elsewhere".

Meanwhile, Colbert Collection will focus on independent premium hotels known for offering culinary excellence and social connection.

Lastly, Minor will also introduce iStay Hotels, a budget brand with a focus on new technology and quality beds.

Minor Hotels Chief Commercial Officer, Ian Di Tullio, said each of the brands has been meticulously crafted to capture specific opportunities and to meet the changing needs of travellers and hotel owners.

"By expanding our brand offering to address new segments, we are empowering our partners, delighting our guests, and accelerating our global growth strategy," Di Tullio said.

"These additional brands will also be instrumental in helping [Minor Hotels] reach our growth target of 850 properties by the end of 2027." ML

On-the-go LE perks

LUXURY Escapes has joined forces with peer-to-peer car share platform Turo to provide a new incentive for travellers to sign up to its LuxPlus+ VIP program.

The exclusive tie-up will see LuxPlus+ members able to access a $100 voucher to put towards their first Turo car rental anywhere in the world.

Members of LuxPlus+ already receive a range of exclusive perks to enjoy with their bookings, including room upgrades, dining credits, and early access to limited-time offers.

Luxury Escapes founder and CEO Adam Schwab said Turo offers a compelling alternative to car hire with its vehicle range and seamless booking platform.

"By partnering with Turo, we're able to provide LuxPlus+ members with even more opportunities to discover new destinations with added comfort and flexibility," he explained.

Turo is available in more than 16,000 cities worldwide.

Bunnik boosts Bishop

VETERAN Bunnik Tours sales professional Kevin Bishop has returned to Adelaide to take up a new role as General Manager of Sales with the tour operator.

Fresh from spending more than eight years based in Sri Lanka with Bunnik, Bishop will continue to drive trade sales campaigns for the company in his new role.

Bishop previously spent nearly four years in Adelaide as Bunnik's General Manager Sales and Marketing, prior to relocating to Sri Lanka.

Galapagos charter

TRAVELLERS exploring the Galapagos Islands with Silversea on board Silver Origin can now expedite their arrival with a charter flight from Quito, Ecuador direct to San Cristobal Island.

The added benefit sees travel time between the two hubs cut to just two hours, eliminating the need for a stopover in Guayaquil.

Guests on the charter flight will enjoy private check-in, blocked middle seats on board, and an upgraded meal service.

Silversea President Bert Hernandez said the enhanced guest journey was about streamlining every touchpoint to make visiting the destination more seamless than ever.

DFAT lowers Israel

SMARTTRAVELLER has lowered its official advice level for Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories to 'reconsider your need to travel' due to the ceasefire deal in place with Iran.

Despite the change, the region is still listed by DFAT as "unpredictable", with regional tensions remaining high and a persistent risk of a deteriorating security situation.

Flight cancellations and disruptions can also occur at short notice.

Bali North Airport

INDONESIAN President Prabowo Subianto has green-lit development for a second airport in the north of Bali, the facility now marked as a national priority.

While Indonesia's Ministry of Transportation is yet to formally decide on a final site for the new airport, the project will also include a new major highway and facilities incorporating elements of Balinese culture.

According to Indonesian news agency Antara, the airport will be developed in Buleleng District and is intended to boost the surrounding regional economy.

Timelines for the start of construction and operations have not yet been finalised.

Tourism taxes not the answer: WTTC

WHILE some cities are trying to manage overtourism with tourism taxes, it is a Band-aid fix that puts economies at risk, said the World Travel & Tourism Council (WTTC).

According to the organisation, if 11 major European cities capped visitor numbers, it would cost US$245 billion in lost GDP and almost three million jobs over three years.

Instead, the WTTC is urging destinations to build long-term strategies and has developed a paper, Managing Destination Overcrowding: A Call to Action, encouraging governments and local leaders to work together.

The report outlines practical ways that overtourism can be managed, including creating taskforces with a cross-section of stakeholders; developing a shared vision; and gathering data to make evidence-based decisions.

It also evaluates the main causes of the issue, such as an underinvestment in infrastructure and poor planning.

To offer practical tips and inspiration, several destination case studies that have effectively managed increased numbers of tourists are featured in the report, including VisitFlanders in Belgium, which views tourism as a tool to support locals, and Dubrovnik, which has partnered with CLIA to reduce congestion.

"Travel and tourism brings huge benefits including jobs, investment, and deeper cultural understanding, but growth needs to be managed carefully," said Julia Simpson, WTTC President.

"We're encouraging all decision-makers to think ahead, work together, and focus on long-term benefits for residents and visitors alike...this is not about stopping tourism, it's about making it work for everyone," Simpson added.

Local protests against overtourism reached fever pitch this summer in Europe, when campaigners in a dozen destinations launched coordinated efforts to bring attention to the impact travel has had on their homes.

Thousands marched across Barcelona, while in Genoa, protesters dragged a giant cardboard cruise ship through the city's narrow alleyways, and in Lisbon, a replica of St Anthony being 'evicted' from his church was carried to the site of an upcoming luxury hotel. JHM

Mariner returns to Oz

REGENT Seven Seas Cruises' 2027-2028 collection of 234 sailings will include Seven Seas Mariner offering a 32-night circumnavigation of Australia.

While in local waters from Dec 2027 to Mar 2028, Mariner will also offer extensive voyages to New Zealand from Sydney, visiting a plethora of ports in both the North and South Islands.

On departure from the region, the vessel will also offer an Auckland to Bali sailing, stopping in at Brisbane, Cairns, Cooktown and Darwin along the way.

Reservations open on 24 Jul, with bookings before 31 Aug accessing cheaper 7.5% deposits.

Saudia resumes LHR

STRONG growing demand for flights to emerging tourism mecca Saudi Arabia has seen its flagship carrier Saudia resume flights between Dammam and London Heathrow after a 15-year hiatus.

The SkyTeam member will operate the route three times a week from 05 Nov.

New MH17 verdict

THE European Court of Human Rights has ruled that Russia was responsible for violations of international law for its involvement in the mistaken shooting down of Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 in 2014.

It is not the first body to find Russia formally responsible for the air tragedy that killed 38 Australians, with the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organisation ruling the Vladimir Putin-led country was responsible in May (TD 13 May).

Coral gets adventurous

CORAL Expeditions has launched new adventure-style small ship sailings called Coastal Adventures, scheduled to depart for the first time in Jan 2026.

Designed to attract a new generation of cruise passengers, the model of voyages will operate off the coast of Queensland, Tasmania and WA, and offer shorter four- and six-night itineraries.

The tone of the sailings aims to be more relaxed and flexible, with guests able to choose from several land and marine options.

Debuting in Tasmania on 04 Jan 2026, these experiences include nature walks; kayaking; stand-up paddle boarding; diving; shopping adventures; and scenic flights.

The cruises will visit popular Tasmanian destinations like Adventure Bay, Bruny Island, and Wineglass Bay (pictured).

Meanwhile, new Coastal Adventure cruises will commence in Qld from Nov 2026, visiting places such as Sudbury Cay, Hinchinbrook Island, Yamacutta Reef, and Dunk Island.

Guests can also explore WA tourism hotspots from Oct 2026, these include explorations of Busselton, Margaret River, Cape Naturaliste and Augusta.

Coral Expeditions added that its bid to attract a younger generation of cruiser will also see the line ramp its culinary appeal, with galleys sourcing produce and beverages from local regions visited on the voyages, in addition to seafood and barbecue nights.

Prices for the four-night options lead in from $4,490ppts for Great Barrier Reef sailings. AB

Window Seat

OFFICIALS in Paris have cleaned up the Seine River to a level where, for the first time in 102 years, it has been deemed safe for swimming.

Maybe the effort was inspired by last year's Olympic Games - including the resulting gastro experienced by many athletes - or just a desire to beat the heat.

Either way, locals and visitors alike rushed to enjoy the rare dip, with three sites now open for up to 1,000 people per day until the end of Aug.

Investments made by French authorities included connecting tens of thousands of nearby homes to the sewer system, upgrading water treatment plants, and building new rainwater reservoirs to prevent sewer overflow.

Euro summer lovin'

EUROPEAN summer travel is in full swing and Australians are lapping it up, with 39% enjoying breaks lasting longer than a month, according to new data from Emirates.

The UAE carrier revealed that 85% of its Australian Jul and Aug bookings this year were for onward European trips, with the majority heading to the United Kingdom (23%), followed by Italy (13%); Greece (9%); France (6%); Ireland (5%); and Spain (4%).

Interestingly, Emirates found that Aussies' largest increase in outbound search interest year-on-year were for France (+29%), NZ (+32%) and Serbia (+34%).

Meanwhile, away from Europe, Vietnam experienced a 61% leap in bookings for summer, supported by Emirates' 25 weekly flights from Ho Chi Minh City, Hanoi and Da Nang via Bangkok.

Searches for flights to Mauritius have gone up 41% for this summer, while Sri Lanka has seen a 32% rise in searches, and Japan follows with a 28% increase.

Meanwhile, 31% of Emirates bookings from Australia are for solo travellers escaping winter, with the carrier stating they are often repeat customers combining leisure with business.

Despite global conflict, the airline revealed that 41% of its passengers are increasingly choosing Dubai as a stopover.

In fact, Emirates has seen a 13% rise in flight searches overall, with year-on-year increased interest in Sri Lanka, Jordan, France, India, Lebanon and Morocco. JHM

Check out New Cal

NEW Caledonia Tourism has launched a new self-famil program, inviting agents and wholesalers to explore New Caledonia at their own pace.

The program allows agents to craft their own itinerary, selecting when they would like to go, and which regions and activities they would like to experience.

To be eligible, advisors need to complete the New Caledonia Specialist E-learning Programme, after which they can submit an application for a self-famil approximately two months before their desired travel dates.

A special online portal has been set up, with discounts of up to 50% on flights, accommodation, transport and experiences.

Available offers include 50% off stays at Chateau Royal Beach Resort & Spa, 30% off car rental with Avis, 15% off national park excursions and 15% off private day trip diving.

CORPORATE UPDATE

CWT conversing with TIM

MANAGERS of corporate travel can extrapolate data from travel reports using conversational AI via an analyst tool launched this week by CWT.

Dubbed 'TIM', an acronym for Trends, Insights and Metrics, the new facility generates reports and locates data based on natural language queries.

Responses can be generated by either single-question requests or from more dynamic dialogue-based discussions.

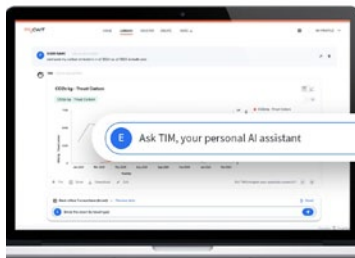

TIM can be used to explore trends, ask follow-up questions to refine results, or change perspectives to share with different individuals or teams.

CWT Chief Product Officer Erica Antony said the latest innovation reflected CWT's continued investment in making corporate travel management faster, smarter and more user-centric.

"With TIM, we are not just improving how users access and understand their data, we are transforming the entire experience," Antony said.

"This conversational AI analyst makes it easier for users to explore complex insights in a more fluid, intuitive way, helping them uncover the 'why' behind the numbers - and ultimately, better understand the return on investment of their travel spend.

"It is about equipping organisations with smarter, faster decision-making tools, without needing specialised analytics expertise or fluency in corporate travel terminology," she added.

TIM is now available to use as part of CWT's analytics reporting tool at no extra cost. ML

Changi at the top

AIRPORTS around the world have been compiled into a hot list by Corporate Traveller based on how they are stepping up to meet demands for business travellers with comfort and productivity.

Based on a poll of travel managers, Singapore's Changi Airport was deemed best in class, with its speedy security and immigration praised for efficiency, along with its vast entertainment, dining and wellness options.

"Changi Airport has everything from movie theatres, art displays and day spas to a butterfly trail, sunflower garden, and the Jurassic Mile - an outdoor display of life-sized dinosaurs - and that's just in Terminal 2," said Corporate Traveller Global Managing Director, Tom Walley.

Dubai and Doha rounded out the podium, the former heralded for its wide variety of first class, business and family lounges.

Wasted leave days

AUSTRALIANS are only using half their annual leave allowance for travel each year, according to a TravellInsurance.com.au study.

The survey of 1,000 respondents found 33% use two weeks to go away each year, with 17% taking just one week and 6% using less than a week for a holiday.

One in five Aussies choose not to travel at all during their leave.

The survey also found younger Australians use less of their annual leave for travel, with Gen Z most likely to only take a week, while just 43% of Millennials took a full two weeks.

Baby Boomers were the most likely to use their full entitlement.

Agents enjoy HK magic

EIGHT key trade partners have experienced a Hong Kong faml with a touch of Disney magic, to celebrate Hong Kong Airlines' new direct HKG-SYD route.

The group (pictured) enjoyed a luxurious long weekend, staying at the Kerry Hotel Hong Kong, and joining the opening day of Hong Kong Disneyland's 20th anniversary celebrations.

The itinerary included a hotel tour of Island Shangri-La, Hong Kong, located on Hong Kong Island; a whisky tour at The Macallan House Hong Kong; and dining at some of the destination's best restaurants.

Hong Kong Tourism Board incorporated cultural highlights into the group's destination experience as well, with a visit to the Hong Kong Palace Museum and a Tai Kwun heritage tour.

The group included representatives of Consolidated Travel Group; Luxury Escapes; Hoot Holidays; Flight Centre; Infinity Holidays; Webjet; and Ignite Travel Group.

Hong Kong Airlines operated its inaugural HKG-SYD flight on 21 Jun, making it the second airline from the country to operate the route (TD 27 May). MS
