Int'l tourism hits US$17.4t

INTERNATIONAL tourism hit record levels at the end of last year, contributing US$11.7 trillion (A$17.4 trillion) to global GDP, new figures released by the World Travel and Tourism Council (WTTC) have revealed.

According to the organisation, the figure is evidence of tourism being "a key pillar of economic recovery and expansion off the back of the COVID-19 pandemic".

Meanwhile, more than 1.5 billion people travelled internationally last year, an increase of 80 million compared to 2024, with an average of 219,000 overseas arrivals per day.

Europe was identified as a main driver of growth, with tourism generating US$2.9 trillion (A$4.3 trillion), up 5.1% when compared to last year.

Spain enjoyed record numbers in 2025, surpassing 96.5 million international visitors, positioning it as a global leader in tourism.

However, the US generated $US19 billion (A$28.2 billion) less than the previous year, due primarily to a decline in arrivals from Europe and Canada.

Despite the overall positive growth for the sector last year, the WTTC pointed to significant challenges that lie ahead.

These include the need to "reduce friction in international travel, improving airport transit and visa processes, and consolidating sustainable practices that balance economic growth with environmental protection and the wellbeing of host communities". JHM

Aeronology names CEO

FORMER Zenith Payments CEO Peter Egglestone has accepted his first major leadership role since departing the business, with Aeronology naming the experienced executive as CEO (TD breaking news yesterday).

Aeronology is a cloud-based and API-driven B2B travel transaction tech business designed to make aviation retailing easier.

The move has seen long-standing chief Russell Carstensen exit the position, however he will remain with the business for the transitional period and still owns a significant stake in Aeronology.

Egglestone's (pictured) appointment is designed to place a greater emphasis on business development and customer-led growth moving forward.

"Our world-class technology, talented people, combined with a new customer focus gives us a unique opportunity to drive value for airlines and travel agencies worldwide," Egglestone said.

Aeronology added that under Carstensen's leadership, the company had moved from a concept to a proven platform, delivering world-class technology.

"It has been incredibly rewarding to see Aeronology's technology make a real impact across the industry and I am confident that Peter's leadership will take the company to new heights," Carstensen said.

The company has brokered a number of deals with a range of blue chips brands, including Virtuoso (TD 14 May 2024) and UA (TD 03 Sep 2024). AB

She most recently led sales at Abercrombie & Kent Travel Group for the global Akorn DMC and Sanctuary Retreats portfolio.

"Fiona brings a depth of experience and a way of working that feels completely aligned with how we operate as a studio," operations director Narelle Langton said.

"She understands the importance of relationships, storytelling, and representing brands with integrity...we're thrilled to have her on board."

An inspiring lineup

INSPIRING Vacations will bring travelling back to Israel as part of its new lineup of tours in 2026 and 2027.

The Israeli leg will be added to Inspiring's already established Egypt and Jordan tour with both 23 and 25 day options.

Free buses for WSI

WHEN Western Sydney International Airport (WSI) opens later this year, it will offer a free bus service connecting it to St Marys, as delays continue on the new metro rail line.

The buses will operate on a half-hourly basis between 4.30am and midnight Sun to Thu, and 4.30am until 1am on Fri and Sat.

Emirates vegan focus

EMIRATES will expand its vegan options with a refreshed range to be available on all classes in 2027.

Instead of replicating meat dishes, Emirates will use a mixture of naturally sourced ingredients such as legumes, grains, nuts, and seeds, and seasonal vegetables to create meals such as Asian noodle bowls and African stew.

There are currently 488 vegan recipes across 140 destinations on Emirates flights, which also includes options for kids.

Examples on economy class include spinach cannelloni with tomato sauce, while premium economy has kimchi fried rice served with roasted pumpkin and sauteed oyster mushrooms.

Delta to unbundle

DELTA Air Lines will unbundle first and business class tickets, according to US reports, making the seats more affordable.

In line with how the US carrier sells economy, the move will see business and first class tickets be sold separately to perks such as lounge access, seat selection and the opportunity to earn SkyMiles.

When it goes live, Delta will be the first major American air carrier to introduce the model on premium seating.

QantasLink makes big play

QANTASLINK will soon operate its Adelaide to Brisbane route using the larger Airbus A220, with the rollout commencing in Mar.

The upgrade from the current Embraer E190 will add 100,000 seats a year to the route, and provide 20% more overhead locker space for passengers.

A220s also have the advantage of minimised cabin noise, better fuel emissions, and free wi-fi.

Due to the A220's increased range, Qantas Group hopes that the aircraft will become a staple in QantasLink's national fleet.

"As the first airline in the Asia-Pacific region to operate the A220, we're excited to bring the aircraft to Adelaide", said QantasLink CEO Mark Dal Pra.

"Customers love flying on our new A220s, which offer a more modern cabin that is lighter, brighter and more spacious".

The news coincides with an upgrade to its WA fleet, with E190s to replace all Fokker 100s.

The WA fleet will also receive wi-fi and charging ports on their Airbus A320s and A319s as part of a wider upgrade.

"Not only will it significantly enhance the travel experience for our customers, it will also help us improve reliability across our WA network," Del Pra said. JB

Tanzania risk lower

SMARTTRAVELLER has lowered the overall travel advice level for Tanzania, and now recommends exercising a high degree of caution overall due to the risk of violent crime and civil unrest.

Travellers should also be aware of the ongoing risk of militant attacks and terrorism, particularly in the Mtwara region near the border with Mozambique - read the full travel advice HERE.

Window Seat

ONE can only recoil in horror at the thought of how many seagulls must be savaging the shores of Beachy Head in the UK after millions of chips washed up this week.

The popular adventure tourist spot has seen 20 shipping containers' worth of potato chips make landfall, with some witnesses suggesting the snacks are piled up as high as two feet in some places.

One hiker told local media that from a distance it looked like an Aussie beach covered in golden sand.

The containers are thought to have fallen from two separate vessels off the Isle of Wight as they battled rough seas during Storm Goretti.

To capitalise on the trend, brands were urged to democratise luxury through accessible design and price.

It's time to 'find your fun'

CARNIVAL Cruise Line (CCL) has launched 'Play Away on Carnival', a new campaign encouraging Australians to "find their fun".

The advertisements will roll out across TV, radio, billboards and online this week, highlighting what sets Carnival cruises apart from regular getaways, and positioning them as an escape from modern life stresses.

Carnival will target audiences who are in need of fun, with radio and billboards to capture the attention of drivers during peak hour traffic, while TV ads are designed to catch the eye of those bored on the couch.

Ads are voiced by Aussie actor Angus Sampson, who is well known for his roles in Bump and The Lincoln Lawyer.

"Too often, our holidays follow the same routine, and we return from annual leave feeling like we've barely escaped," said Nicole Bradbury, Carnival's senior marketing manager.

"What we really want is something truly unique and fun, which is what Carnival Cruise Line is all about."

Bradbury also called out the all-female team who worked on the campaign across a range of agencies, including Innocean, SPEED, Outfox, Bread and FleishmanHillard.

The Australian campaign complements Carnival's new global brand platform 'Carnival is Calling', as well as being closely aligned with its recent US campaign 'Find Your Fun Again', starring Parks and Recreation star Nick Offerman. JM
