US visitor slide continues

INBOUND travel spending to the United States is expected to slump to 25% below pre-pandemic levels this year, according to new figures released by the US Travel Association.

Adding to a 2% fall in 2025, projections show that 2026 is likely to finish with a further 6.3% decline to US$163 billion.

Meanwhile, international visits to the US have also fallen again after a sizable 5.5% contraction in 2025 to 68.3 million, with numbers dropping by 0.7% to 67.8 million in 2026.

Making matters worse, the Association's report suggested that visits are not expected to return to 2019 levels of 79 million until at least 2030, a year later than previously forecast.

Any boost in arrivals driven by the 2026 World Cup was deemed "insufficient" to offset the broader decline in visitors for the year, the report noted, adding that the trend is seeing the US continue to lose its share of the global travel market.

While Australia was not mentioned specifically, the US is expected to see its share of global long-haul arrivals decline from 10.3% in 2019 to 7.7% in 2026, a slide that is forecast to drop to just 7.1% by 2030 - bucking the global trend of long-haul growth.

International visits remain exposed to negative sentiment toward the US, tariffs, entry barriers and the lapse in Brand USA funding, the report said. AB

SIA unpacks cabin overhaul

SINGAPORE Airlines (SIA) has unveiled more details about its next-generation long-haul cabin products - the result of a more-than $2 billion investment in new first, business, premium economy and economy class seats.

The updated offering is set to be rolled out from the second half of 2027 on SIA's 41 retrofitted Airbus A350-900 long-haul and A350-900 ultra-long-range aircraft, as well as its new Boeing 777-9 fleet.

First class passengers will enjoy added luxury, including curved sliding doors for enhanced privacy and spaciousness, companion dining, and centre seats that transform into a two-seater sofa or the largest double bed in the sky.

Meanwhile, business class will offer improved ergonomics with more privacy and personal space, while premium economy and economy customers will benefit from greater comfort, added convenience and new entertainment options.

Additionally, smart cabin controls remember customers' preferred settings across journeys in first and business class. JM

Air NZ names Oz head

AIR New Zealand has appointed Stu Jones as its new general manager Australia, replacing Kathryn O'Brien, who departed the role in May (TD 27 May).

Commencing in the new position on 18 Jan 2027, he brings more than 17 years of experience in the travel and tourism industry, including the past decade at Air New Zealand, where he has held senior commercial leadership roles across sales, distribution, strategic partnerships, loyalty and business development.

He is no stranger to the Australian market either, having previously served as senior manager Victoria, South Australia and Tasmania.

"Stu is well positioned to deepen trade relationships and help connect more Aussies with Air NZ," the airline said. AB

VV's Aussie search

Qantas and VA make fresh Indo pitch

QANTAS Group and Virgin Australia have put their case forward to government regulators for a second time in a bid to secure extra capacity to the lucrative Indonesian market.

An extra 5,000 seats in each direction are up for grabs through an expanded Australia-Indonesia air services arrangement (TD 21 Oct), with VA emphasising that air competition on the market is currently "constrained" by Qantas' dominant position.

"More than 80% of the historical 25,000-seat pool is allocated to the Qantas Group... and VA's additional services would strengthen competition between Australian airline groups and expand consumer choice," the carrier stated.

VA also argued its requested extra frequency - which includes a return to Perth-Bali flights - would allow all Aussie carriers to compete with foreign airlines servicing Indonesia, and would help drive down the price of high airfares as well.

The carrier also warned that if Qantas were to be successful in its bid, it would further weaken consumer choice to Indonesia, with its rival likely to shift to 83% of the market while VA could dwindle to as low as 17%.

Meanwhile, Qantas Group has highlighted planned extra services to Jakarta and a proposed WSI-Bali route as key benefits if it were to secure extra capacity.

Qantas Group wants to operate daily on the WSI-Denpasar route from 15 Mar 2027 using its Jetstar budget brand, an intention that observers believe the govt would look favourably on as it seeks to ramp up the new hub's reach.

The Flying Kangaroo has also pitched a business case that goes beyond Bali, selling the virtues of adding extra services to the Indonesian capital - including the return of Perth-Jakarta flights.

Qantas argued that such moves would strengthen the commercial position of Aussie carriers against foreign-owned airlines.

MEANWHILE, on Fri Qantas CEO Vanessa Hudson confirmed the carrier was in discussions with Airbus and Boeing about converting around 20 existing widebody aircraft options into firm orders from 2030.

During a presentation to shareholders, Hudson relayed that earnings from business and premium economy were growing at twice the rate of economy, with revenue up 15% per year.

Additionally, Hudson noted that Qantas needed to accelerate its technology investment, with improving AI and digital systems central to its strategy. AB

QUEENSTOWN

Travel Daily* is in Queenstown this week for the Luxury Travel Collection's Remarkable Soiree on New Zealand's South Island.

DELEGATES are arriving today as the Flight Centre luxury conference kicks off tomorrow at the premium QT Queenstown hotel.

A highlight of the program will be an address from Richie McCaw, former All Blacks captain, while delegates will also embark on a range of activities around the region on Thursday, including jet boating and heli-tours.

Stay tuned to Travel Daily this week for all the exciting updates and explorations.

Solid VJ results for 2026

VIETJET has reported 41% revenue growth in the first nine months of 2026 as it continues to expand its international network.

Net profit after tax for the same period reached VND1.721 trillion (A$95 million), representing 82% of the carrier's full-year target.

During the period, the airline operated 111,700 flights, carrying more than 20.7 million passengers across its network, which grew to 223 routes.

The strong results come at a time when the carrier is preparing to launch its Ho Chi Minh City-Western Sydney service in Jan 2027, initially set to operate twice a week (TD 10 Aug 2026).

Bookings are also now open for several new international routes, including Hanoi-Colombo (Sri Lanka) and Hanoi-Maldives (via Colombo) from 09 Feb 2027, as well as Da Nang-Jakarta (Indonesia) and Ho Chi Minh-Maldives via Colombo from 20 Dec 2026.

Alongside its network expansion, Vietjet said it would continue to invest in technology and international partnerships, including its collaboration with Starlink to introduce high-speed satellite internet on board its aircraft (TD 28 Sep 2026).

However, a cloud still hangs over the Asian carrier, with a UK court decision imposing a global asset freeze as a result of an ongoing leasing dispute (TD 19 Oct), potentially stymying its access to new planes.

Vietjet is also planning to launch domestic services in Australia under its Cherrie Aviation subsidiary (TD 02 Nov). JM

New river player

THE cluttered European river cruise market is about to have another new player, with River Expeditions flagging launch plans in 2028 along the Rhine, Main and Danube rivers.

Chartering the 160-passenger MS River Silence from Swiss shipping company Crucemundo, River Expeditions claims its twin cruiser design will result in a quieter experience for guests.

Founded by Jan Bryde, whose LinkedIn profile shows he has freelanced with a number of cruise brands such as Swan Hellenic, Quark Expeditions and Hapag-Lloyd Cruises, River Expeditions will run expert-led activities on and off the vessel.

These include wildlife observation, birdwatching, guided hikes, kayaking and e-bike adventures, among others.

Crucemundo said the deal reflected its ambition to expand across Europe's rivers by building strong partnerships. AB

RETURNING a sentimental item is one thing, turning up on the owner's doorstep dressed as hobbits is quite another.

Just ask three Italian lads who not only returned a lost wedding ring to an Irish tourist this week, but did so by flying to Ireland dressed in Middle Earth garb to heighten the sense of surprise.

Patrick Mohr lost his 18-carat gold wedding band in the Tuscan river while on holiday, and enlisted the good samaritans to help search.

While initially unsuccessful, the men found it days later during a deeper dive.

Egypt trains collide

MORE than 100 passengers have been injured and at least seven killed in a fatal train collision in Egypt.

It is unclear at this stage if Australian tourists were impacted by the accident, which involved a train travelling to the southwestern Fayoum province which rammed into the rear of a train heading to the southern province of Aswan.

The site of the crash was in the al-Ayyat district of Giza province, about 52km south of Cairo. AB

Cormorant at 55 opens

AFTER a lot of anticipation and some minor delays, Silversea's The Cormorant at 55 South has opened its doors to guests in Puerto Williams, Chile.

The 150-room property represents a first-of-its-kind venture for the Royal Caribbean Group brand, allowing the luxury line to bolster the value of its Antarctica cruises by hosting guests in luxury at the southernmost city in the world.

Referred to by the cruise line as the "new gateway to our Antarctica Fly Cruise program", every guest will now arrive in Puerto Williams on a Silversea-branded charter flight and stay at The Cormorant, before voyaging to the White Continent.

"We opened The Cormorant at 55 South to make the journey to Antarctica easier and more comfortable for our guests," Silversea president Bert Hernandez enthused.

"Now the expedition begins here, a hotel designed around Puerto Williams with the same service our guests expect while on board our ships.

"Silversea has always been about going further, and this is another example of how we are continuing to invest in the guest experience," he added.

Guests staying at the hotel can participate in hikes and kayaking on nearby waterways in anticipation of their cruise. AB

QF pilots strike deal

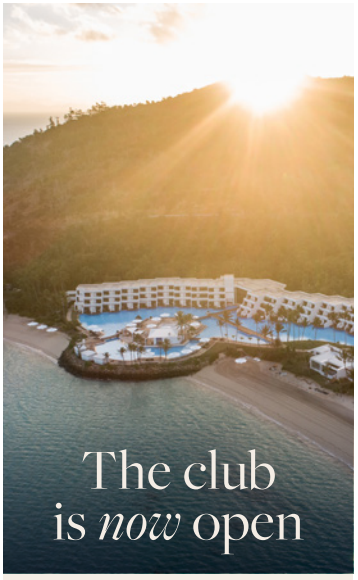

QANTAS' international pilots have agreed on a new enterprise agreement which will see their pay increase by 25%.

Western Syd needs to fast-track hotels

EXCLUSIVE

HIGH construction costs, rising land values and reduced investor activity are making it difficult to build the number of hotels in Western Sydney needed to keep pace with travel demand, according to Western Sydney Tourism Taskforce chair and founder Fazila Farhad.

Speaking with Travel Daily in the wake of Western Sydney International operating its first passenger flights (TD 26 Oct), Farhad said that action was needed to address the shortfall.

"We need more accommodation as demand grows, and it needs to be the right mix in the right locations," she explained.

"Our research identified 8,773 rooms across 113 properties with more than 2,000 additional rooms in the pipeline.

"The NSW Visitor Economy Strategy has targeted an extra 40,000 rooms for Greater Sydney by 2035, however [cost pressures] have made this target challenging because investors need confidence in future demand, clear planning pathways, and the transport and infrastructure required to support new hotel development."

To address the disparity, Farhad said the Western Sydney Tourism Taskforce has called for expanded fast-track development pathways.

"Stakeholders have advocated for lowering the current threshold from $200 million to $50-100 million to support more mid-scale developments and attract a broader range of investors to the market," Farhad (pictured) said.

"[The Taskforce] is helping make that case through our research, hotel forums and advocacy, and our A World At Your Doorstep destination campaign has also supported that work by building awareness and demand for existing businesses and future investment," she added.

The Western Sydney Tourism Taskforce's destination campaign has a number of aims, including to ensure that visitors are exploring more & staying longer.

"Our role is to help members connect with those opportunities, working alongside state and national tourism organisations to build awareness of what's available here," Farhad explained.

"We also understand what the trade needs: clear pricing, reliable availability, suitable transport and experiences that fit into an itinerary, so the next step is turning interest into packages and experiences they can confidently sell," she added.

There is scope for overnight stays, family itineraries, food and cultural experiences, and activities before or after conferences, with the World At Your Doorstep platform helping to initiate and drive those types of business conversations.

While the launch of WSI will no doubt drive considerably more traffic through Western Sydney, Farhad emphasised the need for the industry to work together.

"There are practical things to get right, reliable transfers that suit flight schedules, experiences people can book easily, clear visitor information and itineraries that connect different parts of Western Sydney.

"We need to make it easy and appealing for people to stay here - that means accommodation, and transport, attractions, dining & events all working together." AB

Europe holds firm

INTERNATIONAL visitation to Europe recorded a 3% YoY increase during the most recent summer season, despite geopolitical tensions and the rising cost of travel.

In the European Travel Commission's Q3 report, it was found that 80% of destinations recorded more international visits compared to last Euro summer, with the biggest risers being Malta (18%), Slovakia (15%), Ireland (13%) and Poland (11%).

Higher prices also led to growth in inbound travel spending across the continent, with the most disproportionate gap being in Hungary which had a 20.1% spending increase compared to a 2.5% arrivals increase.

Spending also outpaced tourist numbers in Greece, Belgium, Spain, France, Germany, Portugal and Italy.

The report also forecasted more shoulder season travel in 2027. JB

DFW's big plans

DALLAS Fort Worth (DFW) has announced plans for 180 different projects as part of its $12 billion DFW Forward capital-improvement program.

Set for completion in 2030, the program will see American Airlines operate out of 130 gates at the airport, compared to the currently reported 77.

Other additions include sensory rooms for neurodivergent travellers, an electric air-taxi port and more natural light. JB

Bunnik Tours: Egypt & Jordan 2027/28

The new brochure from Bunnik Tours showcases the experiences on offer for its itineraries in Egypt and Jordan. There are over 100 departures across nine itineraries to book between Feb 2027 and Apr 2028. Highlighting the program's new additions is the 18-day Grand Nile Cruise, now featuring an extended 12-night voyage from Aswan to Cairo, exploring lesser-visited archaeological sites along the river. Staple experiences such as the Pyramids of Giza, the Sphinx, Petra's Rose City and Wadi Rum make their return. All tours with Bunnik come with sightseeing, transportation, gratuities and return international airfares.

Bench Africa: 2027 Small Group Tours

Bench Africa has partnered with Nomad Africa to launch a dual-branded brochure, providing a detailed guide on its small group tours and safaris across Southern and East Africa, ready to book for Aussie travellers. Nomad Africa offers three different travel styles: Explorer, budget-friendly camping for up to 20 guests; Classic, accommodating touring for up to 20 guests and Comfort, accommodating touring for up to 12 guests and added vehicle comforts. The release of the brochure coincides with Nomad's Earlybird Black Friday Sale, in which travellers can enjoy 2027 journeys at 2026 rates when booking before 30 Nov.

Wendy Wu Tours: Africa, Europe & the Middle East 2027 & 2028

Wendy Wu Tours' (WWT) latest brochure provides a comprehensive guide on its range of itineraries across Africa, Europe and Asia, featuring brand-new group tours, private tours and short stays. New tours joining the lineup include the 12-day 'Wonders of Botswana & Zimbabwe' tour, the 14-day 'Treasures of the Baltics' itinerary and the 14-day 'Kruger & Rovos Rail Escape'. With WWT, all prices are inclusive of return international economy flights, all meals, accommodation, local transport and visas (if needed).

EMIRATES will be hosting a series of Aussie-inspired activations at the Australian Open 2027, running from 11-31 Jan.

Headlining the experiences will be the Emirates Marquee, providing guests with a menu featuring Australian produce and the carrier's caviar that is served to its first class guests.

The airline will also sponsor the Kids Tennis Day Presented by Emirates on 10 Jan, a day featuring tennis activities for all ages, culminating in the Rod Laver Spectacular family event.

Australian Open matches will also be aired live on Emirates flights, along with a range of themed amenities and menu items available on board.

The activation adds to Emirates' growing $230 million portfolio of premier Australian sporting sponsorships, which also includes the 2027 Men's Rugby World Cup and the Australian PGA Championship. JB

Alaska sheds jobs

ALASKA Air Group, parent company of Alaska Airlines and Hawaiian Airlines, revealed it will lay off around 200 employees, citing rising fuel costs stunting its profit margins.

The company plans to cut non-unionised positions including 125 in Washington state and 46 in Hawaii.

No frontline or non-management jobs are reportedly on the chopping block. JB

Viking extends China

VIKING has announced a new six-night 'Ultimate China' extension, available for both before and after the following four Asian voyages: 'North Pacific Passage', 'Japan Discovery', 'Far Eastern Horizons' and 'Southeast Asia Horizons'.

During the extension, guests will have two nights each in Beijing, Xi'an and Shanghai, with all breakfasts and most lunches and dinners included.

Across the seven days, guests will embark on 13 guided tours led by a Viking tour director, covering important sites such as the Great Wall, Summer Palace, Tiananmen Square and the Terracotta Warriors.

Prices for the extension start from $6,799pp in Jun-Jul and $7,499pp in Aug-Oct. JB
